

JEWES CROSSING THE BRIDGE IN THE LODZ GHETTO

The two separate physical areas that comprised the Lodz ghetto were separated by a bridge that spanned trolley tracks in the city of Lodz. Since Jews were not permitted to use the trolleys and had to be completely sequestered and isolated, the German occupiers built a bridge over the tracks to connect the two parts of the ghetto. Because the bridge was narrow, Jews often had to wait long periods of time to get from one side of the bridge to the other.
