

The SBL Handbook of Style

SECOND EDITION

For Biblical Studies and Related Disciplines

“Every graduate program should make The SBL Handbook of Style a required text.”

— Carol A. Newsom, Charles Howard Candler Professor of Old Testament and Director of the Graduate Division of Religion, Candler School of Theology, Emory University

The SBL Handbook of Style has been thoroughly updated to reflect the latest practices among scholars, editors, and publishers as well as to take into account current trends in scholarly publishing. This edition has been meticulously supplemented with important new subject matter that fills gaps in the first edition. Chapters and sections have been reorganized and restructured to be more intuitive and logical.

New Material in the Second Edition

- Clearer and more comprehensive guidelines for authors in preparing manuscripts for publication, including a discussion of Unicode fonts
- An expanded list of authorities
- Expanded guidelines on style rules for numbers
- A list of ancient Near Eastern archaeological site names
- An expansive discussion of the treatment of qur’anic sources
- An expanded and improved list of capitalization and spelling examples
- Addition of a section on Islamic dates
- An introduction on the principles of transliteration and transcription
- Addition of capital letters to the transliteration scheme for Greek
- A substantially revised and updated discussion of Akkadian transliteration
- Addition of Sumerian, Hittite, Old Persian, Moabite, Edomite, Ammonite, Syriac, Mandaic, Ethiopic, Arabic, and Turkish to the list of ancient languages treated
- A more complete discussion of the rules of citation
- New rules for the treatment of Latin titles
- A comprehensive list of publishers and their places of publication
- An explanation of electronic resource identifiers (DOIs versus URLs)
- Detailed guidelines for citing a variety of electronic sources
- Clearer and more comprehensive guidelines for preparing indexes
- An expanded list of technical abbreviations
- Expanded coverage of rabbinic works and ancient codices
- A thoroughly updated and expanded list of secondary sources

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

Fifteen years after the appearance of the first edition of The SBL Handbook of Style, the second edition continues its original goal: “To collect information as much as to dispense it; and more than dictating rules of conformity, it seeks to identify those stylistic points where the disciplines already intersect.” The primary purpose of the handbook was modest, intending not to prescribe a universal standard but to help save time for scholars writing in the many related and intersecting fields of biblical studies. In so doing, it benefited publishers, as they began to expect such stylistic consistency from members of these fields and thereby relied on the handbook as a starting point for their own house rules. The handbook arrived at an especially opportune time, when consistency aided research in digital reference works, aggregated databases, and search engines. The appearance of the handbook in the digital revolution certainly contributed to its wide adoption, but largely it experienced this reception because of its original and modest goal.

The careful reader of The SBL Handbook of Style will have noticed “stealth” corrections over the course of the first edition’s seven printings. Through a decade and half, as the handbook became the standard style for biblical studies and as many publishers and scholarly projects adopted it as their style guide or conformed their publications to it, the resource improved in accuracy as errors and inconsistencies were identified. Owners of the original printing, which likely has a cracked binding and loose pages, will find these corrections throughout the second edition.

In addition to corrections, the revisions to the second edition of The SBL Handbook of Style are fivefold. First, this edition includes carefully selected stylistic changes based on the review and recommendation of the editorial board members and consultants. The consultants and editorial board members consisted of scholars and academic publishers, and they, too, consulted with others in their areas of contribution and specialization. The introduction to the second edition of The SBL Handbook of Style alerts the reader to the most significant rule changes. Second, the new edition supplements and updates several areas. Third, the handbook has filled in gaps of coverage or added new sections. Fourth, the handbook has reordered chapters and moved the appendixes into the body of the handbook. Fifth, the second edition continues the practice of supplementing The Chicago Manual of Style. On the one hand, this edition reduces some differences between the two guides. On the other hand, while the first edition tended toward minimal duplication, relying on users referring to The Chicago Manual of Style, feedback from users noted that it would be more efficient to have style guidance in one place. Consequently, the second edition contains more complete information and requires less consultation of The Chicago Manual of Style.

It is worth restating that the field of biblical studies is remarkably diverse. It is not one field but many, including ancient Near Eastern studies, Jewish studies and rabbinics, Christian studies and late antiquity, and reception history. Members of the Society of Biblical Literature teach in departments of religion, biblical and theological studies, Near Eastern studies, Jewish and Judaic studies, history, anthropology, and literature. For this wide-ranging discipline, the Society of Biblical Literature will continue to evolve, and changes will be reflected in future editions of The SBL Handbook of Style.

The SBL Handbook of Style has always been a community resource, crowd-sourced by members of the guild and its many subdisciplines. Its contents reflect this diversity, and the publication is a result of a collaboration of individuals and organizations. Consequently, it would be impossible to thank all those who have contributed to it. The new edition no longer reflects a finite number of named editors. The second edition is a combination of many contributions from readers who submitted corrections and observations, as well as the editorial board and consultants. However, we want to acknowledge the commitment of the original publisher, Hendrickson Publishers, and to thank them for their service to SBL in conceiving the original and offering to SBL this resource. Further, the publisher would like to mention four individuals who were most involved in development of this revision. James Ernest, who was among the original editors, remained insightfully active. Allan Emery maintained the project notes at Hendrickson and delivered to SBL the files in as neat a package as humanly possible. Bob Buller and Billie Jean Collins, among SBL Press's publication staff, bore the weight of managing the revision and adjudicating opinions. Their editorial skill and good judgment are evident throughout.

—John F. Kutsko, SBL Executive Director

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

Nearly two years in the making, not counting the fifteen years of countless prototypes, The SBL Handbook of Style reflects a collaborative effort between Hendrickson Publishers and the Society of Biblical Literature. This collaboration came upon the heels of a conversation about Hendrickson's style manual with Rex Matthews, then editorial director at Scholars Press, who suggested that Hendrickson Publishers contact SBL associate director Gregory Glover. To Greg belongs much of the credit for working out the details and for putting Hendrickson in touch with David L. Petersen of Iliff School of Theology, in Denver. David reviewed the heart of the work, making suggestions about SBL's style preferences and offering sage editorial input. His patience, expertise, and care for certitude were most appreciated. Typesetting the project posed unique challenges; issues of extraordinary character sets, demanding designs, and constant tweaking by the obsessed editors were handled with great proficiency by Phil Frank, senior production editor, and Darren Hurlburt (who designed the book) and Doug LaBudde, production editors, of Communication Ink, Peabody, Massachusetts. The three set records in skill, endurance, and good humor. Thanks are due as well to Joe Carey for his sharp eye and helpful input. Appreciation is also due Emanuel Tov, the J. L. Magnes Professor of Bible at Hebrew University, Jerusalem. Professor Tov graciously provided the comprehensive list of the Dead Sea Scrolls in Appendix F. The generosity of Professor Tov gave the volume an added dimension of usability.

Mark Twain once remarked that he didn't give a damn for someone who could spell a word only one way; he would have hated this book. Precision—spelling that word only one way—is to editors what the Holy Grail was to Arthur's knights. This volume reflects nearly forty years of the editors' collective quests for precision, at least when it comes to everyday decisions associated with publishing in the academic fields of ancient Near Eastern, biblical, and early Christian studies. As most scholars have discovered, trying to maintain consistency in matters of style can be frustrating at best. Often it appears that there are as many ways to do something as there are scholars. Furthermore, the kinds of fine points scholars need resolved are not always addressed in the available resources, and when they are, styles may vary among books, journals, societies, and projects. The SBL Handbook of Style attempts to collect information as much as to dispense it; and more than dictating rules of conformity, it seeks to identify those stylistic points where the disciplines already intersect. Thus, The SBL Handbook of Style endeavors both to become a resource for making stylistic decisions and to be a basis for future judgments about editing and writing in these fields. Although the volume aspires to be comprehensive within its parameters, the editors realize that total comprehensiveness and consistency remain elusive. It is hoped that this volume will save writers, editors, proofreaders, and students time and energy. Should their effort be taken seriously and scholarly writing enhanced, the time required to make this happen will have been well spent.

1 INTRODUCTION

The SBL Handbook of Style has been created to help scholars, students, editors, and proofreaders of ancient Near Eastern studies, biblical studies, early Christianity, and rabbinic studies.

Three principles have informed the selection of material and guided the contents of the handbook. First, The SBL Handbook of Style should as much as possible reflect usage and not make new law. Therefore it has not imposed an artificial consistency on the different areas of specialization in a multifaceted field such as biblical studies. If an area of specialization had a relatively standard and stable convention, it was adopted. Consequently, for example, the handbook includes several conventions for citing different categories of texts. Reflecting conventions within subdisciplines has its advantages and, of course, its disadvantages, particularly when many are used side by side in a single reference work. A second principle is that the handbook should supplement The Chicago Manual of Style (CMS), except in cases when the field very consciously and authoritatively adopts a different standard. Third, scholars and publishers will and should make decisions that trump standard styles. The spelling conventions, for example, have been intended only as a starting point for an author-editor style sheet, although this list includes the type of terminology that should remain consistent throughout any individual work, keeping in mind that consistency enhances discoverability in the digital age.

The second edition has been thoroughly updated to reflect the latest practices among scholars, editors, and publishers as well as to take into account current trends in scholarly publishing. This edition has been meticulously supplemented with important new subject matter that fills gaps in the first edition. Chapters and sections have been reorganized and restructured to be more intuitive and logical. The following list is a selection of the most significant rule changes in this edition, in order of appearance.

RULE CHANGES IN THE SECOND EDITION

Following The Chicago Manual of Style, all names form the possessive with an apostrophe s. Jesus's and Moses's are not an exception to this rule (4.1.6). In the academic transliteration style for Hebrew, SBL now specifies upside-down e (ə) for a vocal shewa, to distinguish it from khatef segol (ě) (5.1.1). For the stems/binyanim, SBL now uses a consistent general-purpose style of transliteration: qal, niphal, piel, pual, hiphil, hophal, hithpael. The previous version was a mix of academic for consonants and general-purpose for vowels (5.1.1.3). Titles of unattributed ancient works are no longer italicized even when they represent a direct transliteration of the ancient language. This rule applies to nonbiblical ancient Near Eastern texts, Old Testament pseudepigraphical texts, Dead Sea Scrolls, apostolic fathers, New Testament apocrypha and pseudepigrapha, and Nag Hammadi codices (4.3.3.1, 8.3). In bibliographies and notes, the basic facts of publication (city, publisher, and date) are set within parentheses, while all secondary publication information is now placed outside of the parentheses (6.2–6.4). Series and journal titles are now abbreviated in both bibliography and notes (6). SBL now recommends using two-letter postal abbreviations rather than traditional state abbreviations (8.1.1). SBL now uses all caps without periods for BCE and CE rather than B.C.E. and C.E. (8.1.2). Small caps are no longer recommended for abbreviations of versions or texts of the Bible: NRSV, MT, etc. (8.2).

 - 2.3.2 Proofreading
 - 2.3.3 Indexing

Apart from the obvious task of writing, authors who are preparing a manuscript for publication have other, related responsibilities before and after submitting their work. Developments in publishing technology have introduced new authorial responsibilities, even though the reality is that authors are no more computer wizards, editors, or publishers than editors and publishers are typically specialists in each author's particular field. For the foreseeable future, therefore, authors will continue to benefit from close and respectful working relationships with editors, proofreaders, indexers, and production experts who are, to a greater degree than many people recognize, responsible for attractive books that bring their authors alone credit.

Publishers can and will provide detailed guidelines whenever an author is expected to submit a printer-ready file. Thus the following guidelines focus primarily on the traditional publication process, presuming that most books will continue to require collaboration between the author and various members of a publication team.

2.1 BEFORE SUBMITTING A BOOK MANUSCRIPT

2.1.1 Adherence to a Style

To speed publication and reduce editorial costs (and, therefore, book prices), authors should conform their manuscripts to the style and format detailed in this volume or in other guidelines supplied by their particular publisher. While proper style and format often concern apparently trivial details, the consequences of inconsistency can be far-reaching. Thus, for example, authors often cite primary sources inconsistently and incorrectly. Consider this: Within a work a scholar could conceivably cite a passage from Josephus's Antiquities as Ant. X,xiii.1 §258; Antiq. X,13,1; Ant. X.13.1 §258; Antiq. X.xiii, 1; Ant. X.13.1; Antiq. 10.13.1 §258; Ant. 10.258; Ant. X.xiii.1; Antiq. 10.13, 1 §258; and so on. Rather than creating unnecessary problems for a copy editor, who must standardize all these references, it is much easier for an author to follow a consistent style conscientiously from the beginning.

A book style sheet need not and often should not await preparation by a project editor (see §3.1). Careful authors will benefit from deliberately noting usages they follow and referring to their lists as writing progresses, and the publication process will be markedly facilitated if authors are able to consult with their editor about the publisher's standards and needs. An author who prepares a style sheet should submit it to the editor along with the manuscript. For guidelines on style-sheet preparation, see CMS §2.52.

2.1.2 Preliminary Technical Matters

Before beginning to write, make sure that your electronic files will be acceptable to the anticipated publisher. Production editors are able to translate files from many formats, but do not assume anything. Especially if you are using obsolete—or even very new or specialized—hardware or software, or if your manuscript will include non-Latin fonts, verify ahead of time that the production department will be able to read your files by sending a sample file and a corresponding PDF.

2.1.2.1 Fonts

Any manuscript prepared today should be typed using Unicode fonts, particularly if it includes non-Latin alphabets such as Hebrew, Greek, Coptic, or Arabic. Earlier (ASCII) fonts for non-Latin alphabets often assigned different keystrokes to the same character (e.g., a Hebrew aleph might be assigned to the “a” key or the “”) key), which greatly complicated file transfers from one computer platform to another (e.g., PC to Mac) and from one font to another (e.g., SPIonic to LaserGreek). Unicode fonts, on the other hand, assign each character in a given alphabet to a universally accepted “location,” so that the character remains the same even though the font or typeface is changed from one Unicode font to another. The universality of the character location enables files from one platform and font (e.g., SBLHebrew on a PC) to be transferred seamlessly to a different platform and font (e.g., Ezra SIL on a Mac) with no change in the coding or display of the text.

In order to use Unicode for a non-Latin alphabet, an author will need both a font containing that alphabet and a keyboard to enter text in that language. To download the SBL Greek and Hebrew fonts, see <http://www.sbl-site.org/educational/biblicalfonts.aspx>. All recent computer operating systems have various keyboards already installed; all that remains is for a user to enable whichever keyboard is needed. For further information, see http://www.sbl-site.org/educational/BiblicalFonts_FAQ.aspx. Even though learning to switch to and use keyboard layouts for other languages takes a little bit of time, the benefits of using Unicode more than make up for this small initial investment of time and effort.

The publisher will determine in what font(s) a manuscript is published. Authors should use Unicode fonts to save time as well as minimize the introduction of errors.

2.1.2.2 Global Changes

Be especially careful when making global changes. An improper search-and-replace string can introduce errors. Keep backup copies so that if global changes go wrong you can restore your work with minimal effort.

2.1.3 Formatting Dos and Don'ts

Use the same font and point size throughout the manuscript (except that a different font may be used for each non-Latin alphabet). Otherwise, do not be too concerned about document formatting. Typesetting is the production team's job, not the author's. Just be sure the manuscript is complete, legible, and easily edited. Do not use your word processor's style option to mark different elements of the text (body text, headings, subheads). Do not use the indexing features of your word processor, as these may be lost in the production process.

2.1.3.1 Headings

Type all headings in uppercase and lowercase letters; do not use the "caps lock" key on your keyboard. The appropriate formatting will be done during typesetting. Do not attach footnote or endnote callouts to any headings (chapter heads, subheads). Try not to begin a chapter with a subheading, such as "Introduction." Use a maximum of three levels of subheading; more can be confusing and overly complicated.

2.1.3.2 Indenting Paragraphs

Do not use tabs to indent paragraphs; use your word processor's paragraph formatting to set indents. Depending upon how you control paragraph formatting, it can often be useful to indicate explicitly whether material following an extract is a continuation of the previous paragraph or should be indented as a new paragraph. The most effective method is to mark the beginning of an intentionally unindented line following an extract with a code such as <NO INDENT>.

2.1.3.3 Block Quotes

Quotations of five or more lines in any language should be formatted as separate paragraphs with all lines indented on the left, without opening and closing quotation marks. Such quotations should use the same font and point size as normal text.

2.1.3.4 Hyphens and Dashes

Please distinguish between hyphens (e.g., first-century writer), en dashes (e.g., Ps 1:1–3; 1972–1983), and em dashes (e.g., "I know who you are—the Holy One of God!"). All Unicode fonts offer separate characters for each. Note that there is no space on either side of the hyphen, en dash, or em dash.

Do not use any automatic hyphenation capability that your word-processing software may have; that is, turn off auto-hyphenation so that words will not be broken by “soft hyphens” at line endings.

2.1.3.5 Spaces after Punctuation

Only one space is needed after any punctuation, whether within or at the end of a sentence.

2.1.3.6 Tables

Authors should use the table feature in their word processor to format tables rather than tabs and line breaks. As with all other text, do not use spaces to indent or align text within tables. Do not use boxes, shading, or other visual table features. Give each table a title and a number (tables should be numbered separately from figures) and provide sources and notes as needed; keep notes that pertain to information in the table with the respective table, separate from the notes to the running text. Such notes are generally best placed in a separate row at the end of the table. Mention each table in the text by number (e.g., table 3, table 6.2, etc.).

It is important to be mindful of the final size of the printed page. Complex tables with many columns and rows may not be usable in a standard trim size such as 6 × 9 inches. CMS §§3.46–85 provides extensive guidelines for the formatting of tables.

2.1.3.7 References

Authors are responsible for providing reference lists that conform to the designated style and for making sure that they are complete and correct. See §6 of this handbook for detailed instructions on notes and bibliographies.

2.1.3.8 Notes

Use your word processor’s automatic footnote feature. Whether the book will have footnotes or endnotes, it is better to leave the notes where your word processor automatically stores them within the chapter files than to number notes manually and type footnote text in separate files. Production editors can move automatically footnoted material to the appropriate place.

Notes pertaining to information in tables should be kept with the respective table; do not include them with the notes to the running text. Do not attach any notes to chapter titles or subtitles. Acknowledgments, prior publication data, or other information not directly related to the subject matter of the work may be placed in an unnumbered note at the beginning of the chapter or article.

2.1.4 Verification of Quotations and Facts

Primary and ultimate responsibility for fact-checking and for verification of quotations (including primary-text references) lies with the author. This includes ensuring that bibliographic citations are accurate, complete, and in proper form and that quotations are accurate not only verbally but also in orthography and punctuation. No matter how many words are cited, they must reproduce the original work exactly. Errors or odd forms of expression in the original may be noted with sic (“so, thus, in this manner”; used without an exclamation point) in brackets following the error, but small typographical errors may also be silently corrected without the distraction of calling attention to someone else’s inadvertent mistakes.

2.1.5 Permissions and “Fair Use”

It is the author’s responsibility to obtain any necessary permissions for the use of text or illustrative material from other publications. Ideally the author should obtain all required permissions in writing in advance. Authors (especially those who are inexperienced in requesting permission) may ask their editor for a standard form letter that they can fill out and print on their own letterhead, or they may consult CMS §4.92–93. In most cases, the author must pay any fees associated with obtaining permissions.

Authors are sometimes unsure about how to determine whether permission is required in a particular instance. Under the common-law practice known as “fair use,” authors are permitted under many circumstances to cite other published works without securing formal permission. As a quick rule of thumb, we estimate that “fair use” permits the quotation of about five hundred words, or if the work is small, proportionately fewer; but a word count is only a crude tool in judging fair use. Authors who wish fuller guidance may seek it in CMS §4.77–91 and in official publications of the United States Copyright Office, as well as on the SBL website at http://www.sbl-site.org/publications/publishing_fairuse.aspx. Editors may at any point in the publication process require authors to obtain written permission for uses that in their judgment exceed what is allowed by current copyright law.

In all cases, whether or not permission to quote is required, quoted material should be precisely documented. Copies of permission letters you have received should be submitted along with the manuscript; if you are still awaiting permission on any materials, submit copies of your letters requesting it.

2.2 SUBMITTING A MANUSCRIPT

Submit all parts of the manuscript in electronic form. PDFs have rendered print copy obsolete; however, a PDF copy that is identical to the electronic files is essential so that the publisher can refer to it should questions arise as to the author’s intent.

2.2.1 Preparation of Files

Authors should provide a file for each discrete unit of text, although the various parts of the front matter may be assembled into a single file: half-title page, title page, dedication or epigraph, table of contents, list of illustrations, list of tables, foreword, preface, acknowledgments, and abbreviations. (The publisher will supply the copyright page.) Units of the main text include the several chapters; if you have any chapters that are too large for your word processor to handle as single files, you may break such chapters into two or more files. Back matter should include any appendix(es) or glossary, the bibliography, and any list of contributors. (For notes, see §2.1.3.8. Authors must normally wait for page proofs before creating indexes.)

Give file names that correspond to the chapter number or other content: 00a_front.doc, 00b_introduction.doc, 01_chapter1.doc, 02_chapter2.doc ... 09_appendixA.doc, 10_bibliography.doc, 11_contributors.doc, and so on. (The extension should indicate the file format.)

Special material, such as charts or figures, should be produced and stored separate from the main text and files. The location of such material in the main text should be indicated clearly, for example, “insert here chart 1 (chart1.doc).”

2.2.2 Figures and Illustrations

The author is responsible for providing the publisher with all artwork, drawings, diagrams, and photographs. The original drawings should be submitted when possible, and photographic prints should be suitable for reproduction. Most publishers will provide specific guidelines for the preparation and submission of artwork. See also §2.1.5 regarding permissions.

2.2.3 Submission Checklist

A complete manuscript submission will include all the parts of the manuscript listed in §2.2.1 as well as all artwork with captions and copies of permission letters.

Please spellcheck all files before printing and submitting your manuscript, but take care lest your word processor beguile you into making incorrect substitutions for words not in its database. Make sure that your PDF represents the final form of your word-processing files.

2.3 AFTER SUBMITTING A MANUSCRIPT

2.3.1 Revisions

Before the manuscript is passed along to a copy editor, the project editor must be satisfied that it conforms to the terms of the contract; if not, it will be returned for revision. Sections 2.1 and 2.2 of this handbook should be understood as describing some of the technical conditions of acceptability. In addition, the editor may find that certain structural modifications, including major deletions, additions, or revisions, are required to produce the book envisioned. It is the responsibility of the author to work with the editor to produce a manuscript that is acceptable to both. After that, a copy editor will work on the manuscript. Purely stylistic changes will not be negotiated, but where the copy editor suggests changes that could alter meaning, it is the responsibility of the author either to approve the copy editor's suggestions or to provide alternatives that better suit the author's meaning. Those alternatives will be reviewed by a project editor.

2.3.2 Proofreading

After the editing process is complete and the book has been typeset, a proofreader should inspect the results. Two observations may be made. First, authors are frequently their own worst proofreaders because they tend to be too familiar with the material and subconsciously “read” a text as saying what they know it should say rather than for what it actually says. Thus, there is no substitute for an extra, critical set of eyes on the material. But second, no proofreader catches every error, so authors who proofread their books carefully are usually able to improve the final product.

For the sake of clarity, use standard proofreading marks such as those described in CMS fig. 2.6 (p. 101).

2.3.3 Indexing

Most scholarly books in biblical studies and related fields include subject indexes, indexes of citations of Scripture and other ancient texts, and some may include a modern author index. Such indexing is the author’s responsibility. In some cases, especially for multivolume reference works and other books containing many thousands of Scripture references, it is a good idea to discuss indexing with the project editor ahead of time.

Indexing—especially subject indexing—is a very technical exercise and is sometimes best left to professional indexers, whom publishers can usually recommend and authors can hire. On the other hand, no one knows a book better than its author, and authors who are willing to spend time on an index can often do quite well. Inexperienced indexers are encouraged to read chapter 16 of CMS (16th ed.) and then consult the project editor before beginning. Chapter 7 of this handbook provides specific guidelines for the preparation of indexes.

Other resources for indexing include Nancy C. Mulvany, Indexing Books (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1994), Hans H. Wellisch, Indexing from A to Z, 2nd ed. (New York: Wilson, 1996), Larry S. Bonura, The Art of Indexing (New York: Wiley, 1994), and Linda K. Fetters, Handbook of Indexing Techniques: A Guide for Beginning Indexers, 3rd ed. (Corpus Christi, TX: Fetters InfoManagement, 2001). For suggestions on indexing for e-books and treatment of indexing in relation to newer technologies, see Diane Brenner and Marilyn Rowland, eds., Beyond Book Indexing (Phoenix: American Society of Indexers, 2000).

3 RESPONSIBILITIES OF AN EDITOR

- 3.1 Book Style Sheet
- 3.2 The SBL Handbook of Style, 2nd ed.
- 3.3 The Chicago Manual of Style, 16th ed.
- 3.4 Other Authorities
 - 3.4.1 Biblical Names and Terms
 - 3.4.2 Nonbiblical Ancient Near Eastern Names
 - 3.4.3 Names of Deceased Persons
 - 3.4.4 Place Names

Editors and proofreaders strive to ensure that a given book both adheres to a specific style and respects the unique demands of each volume. To achieve both goals, editors and proofreaders rely on “authorities.” The most important authorities are, in descending order:

- (1) Book style sheet (§3.1)
- (2) The SBL Handbook of Style, 2nd ed. (§3.2)
- (3) Chicago Manual of Style, 16th ed. (§3.3)
- (4) Other authorities (§3.4)

3.1 BOOK STYLE SHEET

One mark of a well-edited volume is internal coherence. Such coherence begins, of course, with the selection and arrangement of the chapters or essays, but it does not end there. Rather, one should seek to enhance the coherence of the volume during the editing process by striving for internal consistency in conformity to an accepted standard. For this reason, chief among the arbiters of editorial problems is the book style sheet. Inevitably, each book will present unique issues. If enough issues arise, the project editor will need to create a book style sheet. These issues, often concerning capitalization, spelling of unique terms, hyphenation, and so on, should be documented in the book style sheet.

Internal consistency enhances the reader’s sense of a volume’s overall coherence. So, for example, careful editors do not allow the same word to be spelled in several different ways (even if both are acceptable) or some essays to use footnotes for bibliographical citations and others to use the author-date system or still others to be lax in citing their references at all. Furthermore, volumes will appear more consistent if the chapters or essays are consistent in the use of subheads (always helpful) and in the way they are labeled (e.g., numbered or unnumbered but not both; using arabic numerals consistently, rather than arabic in some essays and roman numerals in others). For the most part, style guides seek not to mandate the “right way” as opposed to the “wrong way” but to assist publishing professionals, editors included, in enforcing consistency and thus enhancing the coherence of a given volume. Conformity to the style sheet will not only simplify the editor’s task (many decisions have already been made) but also improve the overall appearance of a volume, so that readers can focus on the volume’s content, not be distracted by its uneven presentation.

3.2 THE SBL HANDBOOK OF STYLE, 2ND ED.

The SBL Handbook of Style is designed to address editorial and stylistic issues that are not specific to a particular book manuscript. See in particular §4 for general matters of style.

3.3 THE CHICAGO MANUAL OF STYLE, 16TH ED.

Currently in its 16th edition, The Chicago Manual of Style remains the most comprehensive general authority on editorial style and publishing practices. Answers to questions not addressed in this handbook may be found there.

3.4 OTHER AUTHORITIES

Questions of style that are not covered by the book style sheet, this handbook, or CMS may be resolved by other authorities. For the orthography of proper names, we follow the works listed below.

3.4.1 Biblical Names and Terms

For biblical names and terms, follow the version of the Bible used in your book, which should be specified in the book style sheet. If the translations are your own, indicate that. In general, we prefer the names and terms found in the NRSV or The New Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible, 5 vols. (Nashville: Abingdon, 2006–2009).

3.4.2 Nonbiblical Ancient Near Eastern Names

For nonbiblical ancient Near Eastern names of persons, places, and deities, consult the following reference works: Erich Ebeling et al., eds., Reallexikon der Assyriologie (Berlin: de Gruyter, 1928– [= RIA]); Wolfgang Helck et al., eds., Lexikon der Ägyptologie, 7 vols. (Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 1972–1992 [= LÄ]); Donald B. Redford, ed., The Oxford Encyclopedia of Ancient Egypt, 3 vols. (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2001); and Jack M. Sasson, ed., Civilizations of the Ancient Near East, 4 vols. (New York: Scribner's Sons, 1995; repr., 4 vols. in 2; Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 2000).

For the titles of ancient Near Eastern texts and compositions, follow RIA and LÄ, as mentioned in the previous paragraph, as well as works such as Carl S. Ehrlich, ed., From an Antique Land: An Introduction to Ancient Near Eastern Literature (Lanham, MD: Rowman & Littlefield, 2009), James B. Pritchard, ed., Ancient Near Eastern Texts Relating to the Old Testament, 3rd ed. (Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1969 [= ANET]), William W. Hallo, ed., The Context of Scripture, 3 vols. (Leiden: Brill, 1997–2002 [= COS]), and the various volumes in the Society of Biblical Literature series Writings from the Ancient World (= WAW).

3.4.3 Names of Deceased Persons

Consult Merriam-Webster's Biographical Dictionary (Springfield, MA: Merriam-Webster, 1997).

3.4.4 Place Names

For place names in general, consult Merriam-Webster's Geographical Dictionary, 3rd ed. (Springfield, MA: Merriam-Webster, 1997). For ancient Near Eastern toponyms in particular, consult the series Répertoire géographique des textes cunéiformes (Wiesbaden: Reichert, 1974– [= RGTC]), and its parent series, Tübinger Atlas des Vorderen Orients (Wiesbaden: Reichert, 1977– [= TAVO]).

Concerning the names of temples and shrines, an essential resource is Andrew S. George, House Most High: The Temples of Ancient Mesopotamia (Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 1993).

For modern toponyms, their spelling, and their geographical coordinates, consult the online database of the GEOnet Names Server (GNS) maintained by the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency: <http://earth-info.nga.mil/gns/html/index.html>. For the spelling of archaeological site names and their corresponding ancient names, see §4.3.3.4 below.

This section, addressed to authors, copy editors, and proofreaders, sets forth standards concerning stylistic issues that commonly cause difficulties in the main text of books.

4.1 PUNCTUATION

4.1.1 Commas

Commas should enable fluent reading. That is, they should not be used where they make for gratuitous lurches in reading; they should be used where owing to syntactical ambiguity (even such as would be resolved by the end of the sentence) the reader might not otherwise construe the text correctly in one pass. The following discussions of commas indicate those uses of commas that are most problematic. Fuller discussions of the proper use of commas can be found in CMS §§6.16–53.

4.1.1.1 Commas in Series

When three or more elements appear in series in running text, a serial comma (“Oxford comma”) should precede the final conjunction. Thus, in phrases like “Sarah, Rebekah, and Rachel,” always include the comma after “Rebekah.” For more on series punctuation, see §4.1.8.

4.1.1.2 Commas in Essential and Nonessential Clauses

Essential (defining) clauses should not be set off with commas:

Paul was an apostle who proclaimed Christ crucified.
 Bruce Metzger’s book The Text of the New Testament was first published in 1964.
 Walter Brueggemann’s Theology of the Old Testament bears the subtitle Testimony, Dispute, Advocacy.

Nonessential clauses (clauses that could be omitted without affecting the meaning of the sentence) should be set off with commas:

Paul, who was one of the primary missionaries to the gentiles, studied under Gamaliel.
 Bruce Metzger’s introduction to textual criticism, The Text of the New Testament, was first published in 1964.

Theology of the Old Testament: Testimony, Dispute, Advocacy, by Walter Brueggemann, approaches the subject using “the metaphor and imagery of a courtroom trial.”

4.1.1.3 Other Uses of Commas

Be careful not to omit the second in a pair of commas in cases such as the following:

Judas returned on Nisan 21, 164 BCE, from his trip to ...
The emperor’s behavior offended even Roman sensibilities when, for example, he immolated scores of innocent Christians.
Scholars are, generally speaking, inclined to dismiss such appeals.

Note that no commas are used around the year when the day precedes the month or is omitted; following CMS §6.47, no commas are used with Jr. or Sr.

Judas returned on 21 Nisan 164 BCE from his trip to ...
He published the second edition in March 1932.
Walter Wangerin Jr. spoke at the conference.

The comma before Sr., Jr., or III is retained in bibliographies and indexes, in which the surname precedes the given name (see CMS §6.47):

Walker, William O., Jr.

Commas are customarily used with abbreviations for religious orders and academic degrees following proper names:

The Reverend Joseph Fitzmyer, S.J., delivered a lecture.

For more on the uses of the comma, see CMS §§6.16–53.

4.1.2 Quotation Marks

SBL practice, in keeping with long-standing American style and CMS, calls for placing quotation marks, whether double or single, outside periods and commas. The most common exceptions involve close textual studies, in which it may be important to signal that the punctuation is not part of the quoted material (CMS §6.9), and linguistic or phonetic studies, where a foreign term is printed in italics, its definition follows within single quotation marks, and any punctuation is kept outside of the quotation marks (CMS §7.50).

Single quotation marks should be used to indicate quotations within double quotation marks.

Note the following examples:

“Correct punctuation is vital.”

I am not a “pedant.”

“He says he’s not a ‘pedant.’”

This man, who claims he is not a “pedant,” nonetheless likes making rules about commas.

Question marks and exclamation points may be placed inside or outside of quotation marks, depending on whether they are part of the quoted or parenthetical material (CMS §6.70).

Thus:

Why had he said, "I'm too tired to respond"?
 Do you understand the word "pedant"?
 "Never!" he insisted, "How should a loyal subject rise up against his queen?"

Colons and semicolons belong outside quotation marks:

S. Westerholm wrote the article "'Letter' and 'Spirit': The Foundation of Pauline Ethics."

Quotation marks should not be used around block quotations; for a quotation within a block quotation, use double rather than single quotation marks.

4.1.3 Ellipses

An ellipsis, which consists of three evenly spaced periods, is most often used to signify that material has been omitted from a quotation. SBL Press recommends that authors use the precomposed ellipsis character (OPTION + ; on a standard Macintosh keyboard; CTRL + ALT + . or ALT 0133 on a Windows-based computer) rather than three typed periods.

When an ellipsis is used within a sentence, it should be preceded and followed by a space.

Correct: "You shall not ... let your voice be heard."
 Incorrect: "You shall not...let your voice be heard."

When a grammatically complete sentence is followed by an ellipsis, the punctuation for the sentence (period, question mark, or exclamation point) comes first, followed immediately (no space) by the ellipsis. As usual, a space is used before the following sentence begins.

Correct: "You shall not ... let your voice be heard.... Then you shall shout."
 Incorrect: "You shall not ... let your voice be heard. ... Then you shall shout."
 "You shall not ... let your voice be heard....Then you shall shout."

Punctuation may follow an ellipsis in the middle of a quotation when the material omitted precedes that punctuation. In this case, there should be no space between the last word of the quotation and the ellipsis or between the ellipsis and the original punctuation. When the ellipsis follows the original punctuation, it should be preceded and followed by a space (example 4).

Correct: "Potiphar, an officer..., bought him from the Ishmaelites."
 Incorrect: "Potiphar, an officer ..., bought him from the Ishmaelites."
 "Potiphar, an officer... , bought him from the Ishmaelites."
 Correct: "Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, ... bought him from the Ishmaelites."

SBL Press discourages the use of an ellipsis at the beginning of a quotation, even if the quotation begins mid-sentence; readers will readily enough infer that the quoted material had a fuller context. Likewise, it is usually unnecessary to include an ellipsis at the end of a quotation. The most common exception to this is when a quotation is intentionally left incomplete (example 3 below).

- Incorrect: "... Potiphar, an officer of Pharoah, bought him from the Ishmaelites."
Incorrect: "Potiphar, an officer of Pharoah, bought him from the Ishmaelites..."
Correct: Israel's Little Credo begins "A wandering Aramean..." (Deut 26:5–9).

It is permissible to change the capitalization of the original to conform it to the quoted context, for example, capitalizing the first word of a quotation even though it originally appeared uncapitalized within the sentence. Although it is not necessary to signal this change (see CMS §13.16), one may do so by placing the changed letter in brackets.

- Correct: "You shall not let your voice be heard.... You shall shout."
Correct: "You shall not let your voice be heard.... [Y]ou shall shout."

For additional discussion of ellipses, see CMS §§13.48–56.

4.1.4 Punctuation following Italics

Punctuation should be set in the same font style—roman or italic—as the main or surrounding text except when the punctuation belongs to a title or word that is presented in a different font style, such as italics. See CMS §6.2 for the standard practice and a fuller explanation with examples.

4.1.5 Final Punctuation for Block Quotations

Block quotations should conclude with punctuation, followed by the citation in parentheses:

Thus says the Lord God: In the first month, on the first day of the month, you shall take a young bull without blemish, and purify the sanctuary. The priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering and put it on the doorposts of the temple, the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and the posts of the gate of the inner court. You shall do the same on the seventh day of the month for anyone who has sinned through error or ignorance; so you shall make atonement for the temple. (Ezek 45:18–20 NRSV)

4.1.6 Possessives

The possessives of almost all singular and irregular plural English nouns (those that do not end in an s) are formed by the addition of an apostrophe and an s; normally, they create no problem, for example, a day's march, the church's founding, Noah's vineyard, the journal's "experimental" nature. The possessives of regular plural nouns are similarly simple, adding only an apostrophe following the s or es that has already made the noun plural, for example, the prophets' oracles, the women's portion, the dresses' beauty. More troublesome are instances where the possessive is applied to proper nouns, and this is in part because some rules have changed over the years. The following special cases warrant comment (for more extensive discussions and for allowed differences, see CMS §§7.15–21):

- 1) Most names ending in sibilants or in a silent s, z, or x should now be treated according to the general rule for common nouns. E.g., Lazarus's home, Achilles Tatius's supposed conversion, Cambyses's conquest, Achilles's fury.
- 2) SBL recommends following CMS in making no exception for the possessives of Moses and Jesus. E.g., Jesus's tunic, Moses's staff. As a matter of tradition, however, some authors and publishers may still prefer to use only an apostrophe, not an additional s.

- 3) Like compound nouns, names and phrases that form a unit add the possessive to the final element, but the possessive is added to each unit if they really function independently. E.g., C. Black III's study of Mark, the king of Judea's authority, Jannes and Jambres's rebellion, James and John's mother, Jesus's and Lazarus's resurrections.
- 4) When the possessive is applied to an italicized title, the ending remains in roman font. E.g., the Iliad's themes, motifs, and symbols....

With minor rewriting, troublesome possessives can often be avoided.

4.1.7 Citing Editions of Original Ancient Near Eastern Sources

When citing editions of original sources (copies of tablets, inscriptions, papyri, and the like), (1) avoid blank spaces without punctuation between volume, text, and page numbers, (2) try to distinguish obverse (obv.) from reverse (rev.), and (3) indicate columns with lowercase roman numerals. Thus,

MVN 21: 200 obv. iii 21

When giving a series abbreviation followed by a volume number, insert a colon ":" followed by a space between the volume number and the text number. Thus,

OIP 99: 256 obv. i 6

Distinguish between text number and page number; in the latter case, insert "; p." between the abbreviation and the number. Thus,

MEE 3, p. 45 (as opposed to MEE 3: 45, which would refer to text no. 45)

When the abbreviation refers to a specific (single-volume) title and not a series, write the text number after the abbreviation with a space in between. Thus,

LKA 118 rev. 1–2

Use the same system when giving museum or excavation numbers. Thus,

UM 29-15-155 obv. i 1–10; 3N-T868 obv. 2.

4.1.8 Punctuation for a Series of Ancient Texts

Punctuation separating a series of ancient references should seek to present clearly both the references and their relationship to one another with the least amount of interruption. Thus, choosing which punctuation to use should take into account the context in which the references appear and the complexity of the series of references.

4.1.8.1 Similar Citations in Main Text

Within the context of normal prose, similar or parallel references are best separated by commas.

The prophetic messenger formula appears in Jer 26, 28, 30, and 31.

The prophetic messenger formula appears in Jer 26:2, 28:11, 30:5, and 31:15.

The temple incident is recounted in Matt 21, Mark 11, Luke 19, and John 2.

Epictetus addresses “courage” at Disc. 1.24, 2.1, 2.2, 3.24, 3.25, and 4.1.

Although some would use semicolons in examples 2–4, SBL Press prefers commas in simple series such as these.

4.1.8.2 Dissimilar Citations in Main Text

Dissimilar references within a prose sentence often require semicolons for clarity.

Most scholars assign Exod 31:12–18; 34:29–32; and 35–40 to the Priestly source.

Epictetus addresses “courage” at Disc. 1.24; 2.1, 2; 3.24, 25; and 4.1.

The semicolons in example 1 make it clear that the final reference is to chapters 35–40, not verses 35–40 of Exod 34. The semicolons in example 2 enable readers to distinguish books and chapters at a glance.

4.1.8.3 Citations within Parentheses

References set off from the rest of the sentence (e.g., within parentheses) should follow the same principles as found in §§4.1.8.1–2: use commas to separate similar or parallel references, semicolons to separate mixed or dissimilar references.

The messenger formula appears throughout Jeremiah (e.g., 26:2, 4, 18; 28:11; 30:5; 31:15).

All four canonical Gospels recount the temple incident (Matt 21, Mark 11, Luke 19, John 2).

Josephus refers to the Jerusalem temple in three of his works (e.g., A.J. 8.95, 11.297; B.J. 5.215; C. Ap. 1.228).

4.1.8.4 Citation of a Series of Primary Ancient Near Eastern Texts

When listing several texts from the same volume, separate them with semicolons (;).

OSP 1: 41 rev. i 2; 84 rev. 5.

When listing several lines from the same text, use commas to separate the line numbers.

OIP 99: 278 obv. vi 7, 12, 16; 328 ix 2; 504 obv. ii 2.

4.2 NUMBERS

4.2.1 When to Spell Out Numbers

As a general rule, whole numbers zero through one hundred and round multiples of those numbers should be spelled out. If whole numbers occur in an immediate context with numbers that by this rule would not be spelled out, then for the sake of consistency numerals should be used for all. Note, however, that items in one category may be given as numerals and items in another category spelled out (see, e.g., the third and fifth examples).

In nontechnical contexts measurements should be spelled out unless they occur in tables or charts. If an abbreviation or a symbol is used for the unit of measure, the quantity is always expressed by a numeral. Percentages are expressed in numerals and the word percent spelled out.

For more on numerals versus words, see CMS §§9.2–53.

Examples:

The fifth and sixth stanzas of this 239-line poem are remarkable for their use of puns.

At this nine-hectare site, only around ten Anatolian archives come from Level II, and only some 5 percent of the textual material recovered from this level stems from Anatolian archives.

Fragment 1 measures 4 × 10 cm and contains twelve partial lines of text.

The figurine is twelve and a half centimeters high and weighs three ounces.

In this analysis I examine 2,437 dog remains representing a minimum of 67 dog individuals from nine sites. A total of 53 canines were excavated, and of these 5 (or 9.5%) were broken.

4.2.2 Arabic Numbers

Our style generally requires arabic (1, 10) rather than roman (I, X) numerals. This rule is especially to hold true in bibliographic forms (e.g., volume numbers). It also concerns the citing of primary sources (3 John, not III John). Some exceptions to this rule are page numbers in the front matter of a book, column numbers in Qumran documents (see §8.3.5) and in many other ancient Near Eastern texts (see §4.1.7), manuscript numbers of the Greek Magical Papyri (§6.4.3.3), works in which roman numerals are an actual part of the title, and series numbers in Discoveries in the Judean Desert (see appendix C). The project editor will point out in the instructions to the copy editor any other instances (such as in archaeological periods or in certain catalogs of ancient Near Eastern texts) in which roman numerals are required.

4.2.3 Commas in Numbers

Numbers of four or more digits, except for four-digit page numbers and four-digit years, require commas. Thus:

3,795 pages
148,397 words
page 1021
1296 BCE
10,000 BCE

4.2.4 Inclusive Numbers: General

Inclusive numbers are represented by the first and last numbers in a continuous series. Such inclusive numbers most commonly refer to pages or sections of a work. See the general discussion of this topic in CMS §§9.58–63.

Inclusive numbers may be related verbally, as in the constructions “from/to” or “between/and,” in which case all digits of each number should be used and the en dash is never used (see CMS §9.59). Examples:

Right: from 156 to 163
 between 1797 and 1812

Wrong: from 156–163
 between 1797–1812

When inclusive numbers are joined by an en dash, as is most often the case, the last number may be abbreviated by omitting certain repeated digits. SBL Press style follows the abbreviation system recommended in CMS §9.60. Examples:

3–9, 11–17, 53–55, 94–113
100–103, 500–508, 502–8, 1100–1187
285–89, 306–23, 809–902, 1003–7
327–35, 448–503, 1465–89, 1698–1703

4.2.5 Inclusive Numbers: Dates

Like many publishers, SBL Press prefers to use all digits for all years in all inclusive dates, CE as well as BCE. Examples:

Right: 502–500 BCE
 327–321 BCE
 31 BCE–14 CE
 154–157 CE
 the years 1939–1945
 from 1856 to 1857
 between 1850 and 1860
 during the 1960s and 1970s

Wrong: 327–21 BCE (if the last date is intended to be 321 BCE)
 154–57 CE
 from 1857–68
 between 1850–60
 in the 1960s and '70s

All digits should normally be used when inclusive dates appear in titles (including in chapter and section headings) unless one is citing a source whose title shortens a range of years; in that case, fidelity to the original overrides a concern for consistency. For the abbreviations for chronological eras, see §8.1.2.

4.2.6 Inclusive Numbers: Ancient Works

Like many publishers, SBL Press prefers that references to inclusive sections or parts of ancient works always use all digits. Examples:

Josephus, J.W. 1.321–329
Josephus, Ant. 2.233–235
Philo, Migr. 178–180
Philo, Spec. 1.13–20
Philo, Spec. 4.155–156
Plato, Pol. 271e–272b

Hesiod, Op. 100–191

Hesiod, Op. 119–191

4.2.7 Inclusive Numbers: Roman Numerals

To avoid possible ambiguity, inclusive references using roman numerals should always be given in full and never abbreviated.

Benoit, DJD II (1961), pls. XCVI–XCVIII

4.3 TERMINOLOGY

4.3.1 Bias-Free Language

The generic use of masculine nouns and pronouns is increasingly unacceptable in current English usage. Historians must obviously be sensitive to the requirements of their sources, but in many cases the assignment of gender to God is best avoided. Consistent use of gender-inclusive language is primarily the author's responsibility. Editors are, of course, willing to help in this regard as in other stylistic matters. Especially in discussions of ancient texts and cultures, it can be difficult for copy editors to discern whether particular instances of masculine language were meant to be generic or really masculine, so authors should be especially attentive to potential problems.

Bias-free writing respects all cultures, peoples, and religions. Uncritical use of biblical characterizations such as the Jews or the Pharisees can perpetuate religious and ethnic stereotypes. Also be aware of the connotations of alternative expressions such as the following pairs:

Hebrew Bible, Old Testament

Second Temple period, intertestamental period

deuterocanonical literature, Apocrypha

For writers and editors who need help in finding language that avoids sexual, racial, and other types of bias, we recommend The Handbook of Nonsexist Writing, by Casey Miller and Kate Swift, 2nd ed. (New York: Harper & Row, 1988), or Guidelines for Bias-Free Writing, by Marilyn Schwartz and the Task Force on Bias-Free Language of the Association of American University Presses (Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1995).

4.3.2 Principles

Many technical terms, foreign words, proper names, and so forth require definition or special treatment. The goal in these instances is always to provide the book's intended audience with the information necessary to understand the author's meaning and argument. When authors use words that may not be well known to readers at all levels of the book's intended audience, they should explain them at the first occurrence. In some books, especially textbooks, it may also be a good idea to put them in a glossary in the back matter.

4.3.2.1 Spelling

Our hierarchy of authorities for spelling, hyphenation, and capitalization is given in §3. These norms apply even to those authors who are accustomed to using British spellings. For words other than proper nouns, Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary is the preferred authority; where multiple spellings are listed, use the first. Thus, in general, a final consonant is doubled before a verbal ending only if the final syllable is accented: worshiping, worshipped, repelled, repelling. For spelling examples, see §4.3.6 below.

4.3.2.2 Open, Hyphenated, and Closed Compounds

If a compound word does not appear in the resources listed in §3.4 (and sometimes even if it does), we follow the general principles in CMS §§7.77–85 and the rules and specific examples given in the tables in CMS §7.85. In brief: generally accepted compounds tend to be closed rather than hyphenated or open; compound adjectives tend to be left open except when ambiguity would otherwise result (which normally is the case only when the compound adjective precedes the noun it modifies—e.g., a half-baked cake).

Some prefixes generally form closed compounds (ante-, anti-, co-, neo-, post-, pre-, semi-, and quite a few others; see the list in CMS pp. 383–84). As a general rule, any hyphenated compound in which the second component is a proper noun or adjective capitalizes the second term and leaves the prefix lowercase (pre-Davidic, post-Pauline, non-Pauline). But even these hyphenated forms sometimes become closed, in which case the whole word may be capitalized (Neoplatonism, Neoplatonic). Not infrequently in ancient Near Eastern studies, style sheets permit compound forms in which both the prefix and the noun are capitalized, especially if it is a proper noun (e.g., Neo-Assyrian, Neo-Hittite). Note that quasi- forms hyphenated compound adjectives and open compound nouns.

Sometimes compounds that should be closed because they are formed with one of the prefixes mentioned above are left open because the closed form would be awkward. So CMS lists anti-intellectual, pro-life, and we agree. Usage varies in the case of compounds in which a prefix ends with the same vowel as begins the base. Thus CMS and Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary accept the form neoorthodox but retain a hyphen for co-opt.

Some examples:

anti	antilegalistic, antimonarchic; but anti-Semitic
counter	counterintuitive, counterproductive
extra	extrabiblical, extramural
inter	internecine, interfaith macro	macrostructure
meta	metalanguage; but meta-analysis
mid	midcareer, midcentury; but mid-first century
multi	multiauthor, multiperspectival
non	noncanonical, nonidolatrous, nonnative; but non-Christian over	overemphasize, overread
post	postexilic, postbiblical
pre	preexilic, premonarchic
pro	promonarchic
proto	protolanguage, prototext

pseudo	pseudointellectual, pseudolegal
quasi	quasi-scientific (adj.), quasi contract (noun)
re	reread, reedit; but re-creation/re-create to signify creating again
semi	semitechnical; but semi-independent socio	sociohistorical, sociorhetorical, sociocultural, socioeconomic
sub	subheading, substandard
super	superabundant, superstructure
trans	transhistorical, translegal
un	unchristian, unattested, uncorroborated
under	underrepresented, undervalued

4.3.2.3 Capitalization (Other Than Titles of Works)

A measure of the difficulties posed by capitalization is the fact that CMS devotes most of a chapter (7) to the topic. The first edition of this handbook endorsed the tendency toward down style (the use of fewer initial capital letters) but implemented it incompletely, perhaps owing to the weight of tradition and the diversity of the ancient literatures covered. Moreover, different publishers have different preferences, and individual publications may need to vary from accepted patterns for particular reasons. In all cases, the book style sheet (see §3.1) should record the preferences.

For our hierarchy of authorities concerning the spelling of proper names, see §3.4. For capitalization of names with particles, however, see §7.2.2 and the examples in §7.2.2.3, and for capitalization examples see §4.3.6.

4.3.2.4 Italics

Specific terms being discussed are best set in italics rather than quotation marks (see CMS §7.54). Thus, “Hope occurs three times in this verse.” If the term is repeated, the italics need not be continued. On using italics for foreign words, see §4.3.2.5. For punctuation following italics, see §4.1.4.

4.3.2.5 Treatment of Foreign Words

Principles

1. Foreign words and phrases used within an English context are typically italicized (e.g., imago Dei).
2. Quotations of foreign words, phrases, and sentences are set roman and enclosed within quotation marks (e.g., “Ein umherirrender Aramäer war mein Vater”).
3. Foreign words and phrases that have passed into common English usage are set roman (e.g., locus classicus). Any word or phrase listed in the main body of Merriam-Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary (11th ed.) is considered to have passed into common English usage (e.g., ad hoc).
4. Similar or related words and phrases should be treated similarly (e.g., “ipsissima verba” is roman in Merriam-Webster’s, so “ipsissima vox” should also be roman, even though it is not listed).
5. Transliterated foreign terms are italicized (e.g., agapē).
6. Foreign proper nouns are set roman (e.g., Aelia Capitolina, Tel Yin’am).

7. Abbreviations for common foreign terms are set roman even if the foreign term itself would be italicized (e.g., et al. but et alii).
8. German nouns lowercased in Merriam-Webster's are lowercased (e.g., weltanschauung).

Common examples:

a priori	Grundlage (pl. Grundlagen)
ad hoc	haggadah, haggadic
ad nauseam	halakah, halakic
Aelia Capitolina	hapax legomenon (pl. legomena)
agape (but transliterated agapē)	Haustafel (pl. Haustafeln) agora	Heilsgeschichte, heilsgeschichtliche
amphora	hic et nunc
anno mundi	ibid.
apparatus criticus	i.e. (id est) archon (transliterated archōn)	imago Dei
atrium	in situ
bamah (transliterated bāmā)	inclusio
basilica	inter alia
bema (but transliterated bēma)	ipsissima verba
boustrophedon	ipsissima vox
ca. (circa)	kabbalah
caveat lector	kerygma chiasm, chiasmus	ketiv contra	koine (but Koine Greek [proper noun]) coup d'état	lectio brevior demos (transliterated dēmos)	lectio difficilior
de novo	lectio facilior
e.g. (exempli gratia)	lex talionis
en masse	loc. cit. (use is discouraged)
eros	loculus (pl. loculi)
et al. (et alii)	locus
etc.	locus classicus
ex nihilo	longue durée ex novo	mā'at (concept), Maat (deity)
ex officio	masorah
fait accompli	mater lectionis (pl. matres lectionis)
faux pas	materfamilias
favissa (pl. favissae)	merkabah
Festschrift (pl. Festschriften)	midrash
ff. (use is discouraged)	mise-en-scène fibula (pl. fibulae)	monde
floruit	mutatis mutandis
glacis	nomina sacra (sg. nomen sacrum)

pace	stadium (pl. stadia)
paraenesis, paraenetical	status quaestionis
parallelismus membrorum	supra parousia	s.v. (but sub verbo, sub voce) passim	Tel Yin'am
paterfamilias	Tendenz
per se	terminus ante quem pithos (pl. pithoi)	terminus post quem
polis	testimonium (pl. testimonia)
qere	topos, topoi
qinah	tour de force raison d'être	Übermensch
requiescat in pace	vaticinium ex eventu
sans	vis-à-vis
scriptio continua	Vorlage (pl. Vorlagen) shalom	weltanschauung
Shema	Winkelhaken
sic	Wissenschaft
sopherim

4.3.3 Ancient Sources

4.3.3.1 Titles of Ancient Near Eastern Texts

A title should be set roman whether it is a conventional English-language title or a direct transliteration of the ancient language (see §4.3.2.5, principle 6). Titles should not be placed within quotation marks (except when citing the published translation of a text; see §6.4.1). Thus,

The Babylonian Story of Creation or Enuma Elish
 The Stela of the Vultures
 Code of Hammurabi
 The Tale of Apopis and Seqenenre

Set in lowercase the plural generic description of archives and caches (e.g., inscriptions, letters, ostraca, papyri, texts) and in uppercase the individual references:

Lachish letters, Neo-Hittite inscriptions, genizahs
 Lachish Letter 19, Moabite Inscription, Cairo Genizah

In those cases where texts have considerably different titles (not simply the difference, e.g., between Legend of Aqhat or Aqhat Epic), provide the reader with an explanatory comment. Thus,

The Birth of Dawn and Dusk (also known as The Birth of the Gracious Gods, or The Birth of Shahar and Shalim)

For spelling, see hierarchy of authorities in §3.4.

4.3.3.2 Ancient Persons

When a surname preceded by ben or ibn (meaning “son [of]”) occurs in mid-sentence without a first name, the “ben” or “ibn” is capitalized (“the works of Ibn Ezra”).

The first occurrence of an ancient personal name should be accompanied by the dates of that person’s life. In many cases, of course, the best that can be offered is an indication of the century in which the person lived.

For spelling, see hierarchy of authorities in §3.4.

4.3.3.3 Ancient Places

Especially when a volume concerns ancient Near Eastern geography or archaeology, locations and dates of habitation should be given at the first occurrence of ancient place names. For sites that have multiple names (ancient, biblical, premodern, modern, Arabic), give all the names that are relevant:

Mari (Tell Hariri), Ugarit (Ras Shamra), Shechem (Tell Balaṭah), Jericho (Tell es-Sultān), Hazor (Tell el-Qedah), Caesarea Philippi (Baniyas), Beit Shean (later Scythopolis, modern Tell el-Hisn), Samaria (Sebaste)

In some cases, it may be helpful to indicate which names are ancient, modern, and so on.

Mari (modern Tell Hariri), Tel Dan (biblical Dan), Uruk (biblical Erech, present-day Warka), Akhetaten (modern Tell el-Amarna), Rabbath Ammon (later Philadelphia)

Alternatively, archaeological works may provide the modern name of a site followed by the ancient name, if known, separated by an en dash. Slashes are to be avoided.

Tell Hariri–Mari, Boghazköy–Hattusa, Kültepe–Kanesh

Hebrew geographical names are, when needed, preceded by Tel (one el), Arabic by Tell (two els). If a mix of sites preceded by both Tel and Tell is being discussed collectively, or if used generically, tell is the default spelling. For names with the Arabic definite article al, follow CMS §11.99.

For spelling, see hierarchy of authorities in §3.4 and examples in §4.3.3.4.

4.3.3.4 Archaeological Site Names

The following is a selective list of archaeological sites in the ancient Near East and eastern Mediterranean. It is intended to provide guidance regarding the spelling of modern site names and their corresponding ancient place names. The modern site name is given first, followed by the ancient place name if known. In the absence of a modern name, the ancient place name alone is given. In some cases, the modern and ancient names are the same. Place names (ancient and modern) are given in roman font with the exception of Cypriot sites, for which it is traditional to use italics in the second, more precise, element of the toponym.

For additional guidance on the names, spelling, locations, and more of archaeological sites in the Greco-Roman world, consult Richard J. A. Talbert, ed., Barrington Atlas of the Greek and Roman World (Princeton: Princeton University Press, 2000), and the Pleiades Project, <http://pleiades.stoa.org/>.

4.3.3.5 Other Geographical Terms and Names

For general reference, follow Merriam-Webster's Geographical Dictionary, 3rd ed. (Springfield, MA: Merriam-Webster, 1997).

The generic terms delta, desert, gulf, island(s), lake, mount, mountain(s), nahal, nahr, river, sea, strait, tel, tell, valley, wadi should be capitalized when used as part of a specific name (CMS §8.52):

Kidron Valley, Lake Huleh, Lebanon Mountains, Ophel Ridge, Khirbet Qumran.

For spelling, see the hierarchy of authorities in §3.4; for capitalization, CMS (§8.52) recommends that in the plural a generic term “is capitalized when it is part of a single name (Hawaiian Islands) and when it is used of two or more names, whether beginning with the generic term (Mounts Washington and Rainier) or ... when the generic term comes second and applies to two or more names.” Thus:

Tigris and Euphrates Rivers

Note political divisions, such as Central Europe, as distinct from geographical divisions, such as central Asia (CMS §§8.50, 52).

4.3.3.6 Events and Concepts

As a general rule, do not capitalize the names of biblical, religious, and theological (including eschatological) events and concepts:

atonement (as a general concept or rite), body and blood, body of Christ, creation, crucifixion, day of judgment, exile, exodus (from Egypt), fall, first missionary journey, kingdom of God (or heaven), man of sin, nativity (of Jesus), new covenant, passion (of Christ), resurrection, tabernacle, temple, virgin birth.

4.3.4 Biblical Sources

4.3.4.1 Designations for the Bible

In general, a word or phrase used as a title of the whole or a specific part of the Bible is capitalized (as are titles of other ancient works); the name of a genre is not capitalized. Thus any ancient or modern designation for the Bible, a book of the Bible, a division of the biblical canon (e.g., Pentateuch), or a discrete section of a biblical book (e.g., Primeval History) may be a proper noun and so capitalized. But when the same words are used generically, they should remain in lowercase.

Many contentious debates can arise over correct usage on these matters, and authors will clearly encounter competing standards. While the best advice is to follow the preferences of your publisher and in any event to be consistent (keeping track of your preferences for the project editor; see §3.1), the following guidelines are offered with the hope that they will be found useful.

It is usually preferable to avoid designations like book, letter, and epistle when referring to the titles of biblical writings (e.g., Psalms is better than book of Psalms, and James than Epistle of James). While, again, authors must respect the preferences of their publishers, a general rule (followed, e.g., by CMS and Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary) is to capitalize words when they are used as titles of a specifically identifiable writing but lowercase them otherwise. Thus: “The Gospel of John begins with a prologue about the Logos,” but “The Gospel of John’s Prologue introduces the Logos.”

SBL Press capitalizes Gospel when it is part of the title of a work and lowercases the term when it refers generically to the genre or to good news, message, or authoritative tradition.

Below are a few examples; for others, see §4.3.6.

Book of the Wars of the LORD; Book of Jashar (but: book of the law of Moses, the book of the covenant, the book of the prophet Ezra son of Seraiah) book of Job; book of Jeremiah; Jeremiah’s scroll Law, Prophets, Writings (as canonical divisions; = Torah, Pentateuch, etc.); Mosaic law, Hebrew prophets, wisdom literature
 Twenty-Third Psalm; Psalm 100; psalms of Asaph the parable of the good Samaritan four canonical gospels, the Gospel of John, the Fourth Gospel, Paul’s gospel

4.3.4.2 Nouns Referring to God

Certain nouns traditionally used as alternative names of God or of one of the persons of the Trinity are capitalized when so used:

Bat Qol, Comforter, Creator, Father, G-d, Immanuel, King, King of kings, Lamb, Lamb of God, L-rd, Lord, Lord of lords, Maker, Messiah, Redeemer, Son, Son of God, Son of Man, Wisdom, Word

Nontraditional designations should also be capitalized (e.g., Parent used as a gender-neutral substitute for Father). Ordinarily, noun phrases are capitalized as if they were book titles (e.g., Son of Man), but when the point is to exalt the Divinity over lesser imitators, the phrases may contain capitals and lowercase (see, e.g., the NRSV and NIV usage of God of gods, King of kings, and Lord of lords in Deut 10:17 and Rev. 17:14 with the strictly human king of kings in Ezra 7:12; Dan 2:37). In an academic context the trend should be to lowercase. Other designations less often used outside of particular scriptural contexts are less often capitalized:

bread of life or Bread of Life, crucified one or Crucified One, man of sorrows or Man of Sorrows, light of the world or Light of the World

With all of these, and especially the latter category, usage varies. A book or journal should be internally consistent. If the author of a single-author volume has a preference and has been consistent, that preference should be allowed to stand. If not, SBL recommends lowercase. For biblical expressions, it can be helpful to consult the usage of a recent Bible translation such as the NRSV, the NIV, the REB, the NJB, or the CEB. In any event, the project editor should include all such items in the book's style sheet.

4.3.4.3 Pronouns Referring to God

Avoid using unnecessary gender-specific pronouns in reference to the Godhead (see §4.3.1). In those cases when such pronouns are unavoidable, they should not be capitalized (thus he, him, his; but for expressions like Third Person of the Trinity, see §4.3.4.2).

4.3.5 Qur'anic and Islamic Sources

4.3.5.1 Designation and Citation of the Qur'an

The title of the Islamic scripture, properly transliterated as al-Qur'ān, is rendered into English and other European languages in a variety of ways (e.g., Koran, Coran, Quran). The preferred form is "Qur'an" (with the medial glottal stop represented), with the adjective being "qur'anic." While "Koran" is the historical name for the scripture in the English language, this version of the title has come to seem old-fashioned and should be avoided. "Qur'an" and "qur'anic" with a single quote is preferred in most contexts, although works that render Arabic terms with full transliteration may choose to indicate the medial glottal stop with a proper hamzah (Qur'an) for the sake of consistency.

The 114 chapters of the Qur'an (suwar, sg. sūrah; the plural sūrahs is also acceptable) are divided into verses (āyāt, sg. āyah; the plural āyahs is also acceptable).

Generally speaking, the first reference to a verse or verses in a single chapter should give the Arabic title of the sūrah first, followed by the numbers of the chapter and verse or verses separated by a colon, such as Q Baqarah 2:54, Q Maryam 19:20, Q 'Alaq 96:1–5. In subsequent references to the same verse, or in other instances in which abbreviated reference is desirable, one may omit the title of the sūrah.

If one is citing a group of sūrahs to illustrate a point, it is not necessary to indicate the title of each. Thus, compare "The so-called Sword Verse (Q Tawbah 9:5) has historically occasioned much discussion..." with "Common themes link several of the sūrahs that tradition holds to be very early such as Q 96, 73, 74, 92, 89, et cetera."

When referring to a particular sūrah in its entirety, it is proper to use the construct form of sūrah as part of the title, as in "There has been significant debate as to whether long chapters such as Sūrat al-Baqarah should be considered unitary compositions."

It is not conventional to cite particular editions of the Qur'an, as modern printed Qur'ans are generally uniform regarding vocalization, division of verses, and the like. Most modern printed Qur'ans are derived from the Royal Cairo edition of 1924, produced under the supervision of a committee of scholars from Al-Azhar University. Due to the wide influence of this edition, the particular reading of the qur'anic text it represents (the transmission of Ḥafṣ from 'Āṣim, one of fourteen generally recognized qirā'āt or readings of the Qur'an) has become universally predominant, though alternative traditions of printing in India, Turkey, and elsewhere have led to printed versions that are slightly different in their vocalization and conventions. The alternative verse numberings found in the Flügel and older Indian editions of the Qur'an are seldom encountered these days, and it should be tacitly understood that the Cairo verse numbering is in use.

Casual reference to Muhammad as the author of the Qur'an, once conventional in Western scholarship, is now generally avoided. Discussion of the possibility of the authorship of the Qur'an by the historical Muhammad is acceptable in reasoned argument, however.

When possible, authors should also avoid ascribing agency to the Qur'an through expressions such as "The Qur'an argues that..."; a more neutral reference to the text itself and its contents is preferable, such as, "In many passages in the Qur'an, one finds the claim that..." or "Throughout the canonical scripture, stories familiar to Jews and Christians from their own sacred writings are portrayed." If an active subject is desired, "the text of the Qur'an" or "qur'anic discourse" may be acceptable depending on context. Ascribing intentionality, attitude, or belief to the Qur'an itself (or to the Deity) should be avoided.

4.3.5.2 Title and Author Conventions for Non-Qur'anic Texts

Titles of Arabic works other than the Qur'an should be given in full upon their first citation and in a shortened form thereafter. Only the first word should be capitalized, with the exception of book titles in which kitāb ("book") is the first word; in this case, the next word should be capitalized as well. Insofar as classical works in particular are commonly given ornamental rather than descriptive titles, translation of the title is to be avoided, except parenthetically upon first mention if it is deemed significant.

Al-Ṭabarī, Jāmi' al-bayān 'an ta'wīl āy al-Qur'ān (first citation); Jāmi' al-bayān (subsequent citations)

Mālik b. Anas, Al-Muwatta' li-Imām Mālik (first citation); Muwatta' (subsequent citations)

Ibn Sa'd, Kitāb al-Ṭabaqāt al-kubrā (first citation); Kitāb al-Ṭabaqāt (subsequent citations)

Al-Zabīdī, Tāj al-'arūs min jawāhir al-qāmūs (first citation); Tāj al-'arūs (subsequent citations)

Due to its controversial subject matter, Ibn al-Kalbī's Kitāb al-Aṣṅām (Book of Idols) was likely deliberately suppressed in early 'Abbasid times.

Upon first mention, the name of a Muslim author, tradent, or other figure should be given in the fullest form possible, following the standard pattern: kunya (progenitive); ism (proper name); nasab (patronymic); nisbah ("surname," that is, place of origin, tribal or professional association, etc.). The name should also be followed by the death date: for example, Abū Ja'far Muḥammad b. Jarīr al-Ṭabarī (d. 310/923). Subsequent mentions should use the nisbah, or otherwise the most commonly used term of reference, 'urf (customary name): for example, al-Bukhārī, al-Bayḍāwī, al-Fīrūzābādī; but Muslim, Ibn Sa'd, Ibn al-Kalbī. For many medieval authors, a laqab (honorific) may be standard as well; further, the customary appellation or 'urf may not be generated from the standard components of the name at all, for example, Shihāb al-Dīn Abū'l-Faḍl Aḥmad b. 'Alī al-'Asqalānī, universally known as Ibn Ḥajar al-'Asqalānī.

If two or more people are under discussion who have the same nisbah, they should be consistently distinguished at all times, for example, 'Alī b. Rabbān al-Ṭabarī versus Abū Ja'far al-Ṭabarī; Abū Ḥātim al-Rāzī versus Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī.

4.3.5.3 Divine Nomenclature

The name "Allah" (Allāh) is considered the proper name of the deity in the Qur'an and Islamic tradition, whereas the numerous other appellations applied to him by the Qur'an are understood as epithets. Because it is the main designation for the deity in Islamic tradition, the English “God” should consistently be used to render the word Allāh. The other appellations applied to God should be given in italics, with English translation indicated if desirable or contextually appropriate, for example:

The epithet al-Raḥmān, “the Merciful One,” is reminiscent of the South Arabian name Raḥmanan, which itself has an apparent parallel in talmudic usage as well.

Islamic tradition assigns numerous epithets to God derived from adjectives used to describe him in the Qur’an; they indicate his power (al-Qadīr “the One Who Determines Affairs”), his might (al-‘Azīm “the Great,” and al-Muḥīt “the Encompassing”), and his generosity (al-Raḥīm “the Merciful,” and al-Razzāq “the Provider”).

4.3.5.4 Common Names

The names of major figures associated with Islamic tradition such as Muhammad, ‘Ali, ‘A’isha, and Abu Bakr need not be subject to proper transliteration when they are cited, although ‘ayn and hamzah should be included to assist correct pronunciation. When these names appear as part of the proper name of later figures, they should be fully transliterated. Thus, contrast “The Prophet Muhammad and his cousin ‘Ali” and “Muḥammad b. ‘Alī al-Bāqir, recognized as the Fifth Imam of the Shi‘a.”

The full spelling ‘Abd Allāh is to be preferred over ‘Abdallah, ‘Abdullah, and the like.

When characters from biblical, Jewish, and Christian tradition are discussed in the context of their appearance in the Qur’an or Islamic tradition, the familiar English version of the name should be used. However, when that name appears as part of the nomenclature of a specific historical individual from Islamic history or culture, it should appear in its Arabicized form, such as Jesus, but Abū ‘Īsā al-Warrāq; Aaron, but Hārūn al-Rashīd; Solomon, but Salmān Pak (and otherwise Sulaymān).

The rules of transliteration of Arabic names should not be applied to modern authors who have published in Western languages; rather, the authors’ particular choice for representing their names should be respected, such as Maryam Jameelah, Ebrahim Moosa, and Nadia Maria El Cheikh.

While pious Muslims view the inclusion of benedictions upon Muhammad and major figures of the tradition as a religious requirement (e.g., “The Prophet Muhammad, prayers and peace of God upon him, migrated from Mecca to Medina in 632 CE”), this is generally to be avoided in scholarly usage.

4.3.5.5 Place Names

Common place names need not be subject to proper transliteration and should be rendered according to their familiar English form, such as Mecca, Medina, Damascus, Iraq, Syria, Hijaz, and so forth. When included as part of a proper name as an attributive adjective (nisbah), these names should be preserved in their Arabicized form. Compare “Muhammad’s uncle Abu Talib was a major figure among the prominent leaders of tribes and clans in Mecca” and “The tenth-century jurist and mystic Abū Ṭālib al-Makkī interpreted these verses.”

If the primary literary context of the discussion is a source in Arabic, nisbahs based on non-Arab locales should be given in their Arabicized forms (e.g., al-Nisābūrī and not al-Nīshāpūrī). If the primary literary context is Persian (especially with Persian text appearing in transliteration in the article), then the Persianate form is to be used.

4.3.5.6 Technical Terms in Islamicate Languages

There are three tiers of specialized terminology in use in scholarly discussions of the Qur'an and Islam in Western languages.

1. Some terms originating in Arabic or other Islamicate languages are so commonly encountered in English and other Western languages that they need not be formally transliterated nor glossed, such as bazaar, caliph, imam, Islam, jihad, ulama, and so on. This practice also extends to the names of major dynasties, political movements, philosophical and legal schools, and so forth, which should be given according to the most current and readily recognizable form: 'Abbasids, Hanafis, Mu'tazila, Shi'a (sg. Shi'i; but cf. Sunni/Sunnis). Inclusion in the Oxford English Dictionary is a good indication of a first-tier Arabic term.
2. Some terms originating in Arabic or other Islamicate languages are not commonly encountered in English and other Western languages but are so well known to the probable audience of a scholarly work that they need not be glossed, although they should be italicized and properly transliterated, such as fiqh, ḥadīth, muḥaḥaf, qirā'āt, tafsīr.
3. All other specialized terms should be italicized and properly transliterated upon every occurrence, and glossed upon their first occurrence, such as ʿiṣmah (impeccability), nubuwwah (prophecy), and ta'dīl (validation).

4.3.7 Dates

See §8.1.2 for treatment of eras.

4.3.7.1 Format

Dates are preferably presented in the day-month-year format, which now enjoys widest international acceptance and avoids interrupting punctuation. Because of the confusion that is introduced when dates are abbreviated by digits alone (does 3/12 refer to March 12 or 3 December?), such abbreviation is best avoided.

15 August 1979 (or, if the month-day-year system is used, August 15, 1979)

August 1979

August 20 CE (August AD 20)

August 20 BCE (August 20 BC)

4.3.7.2 Ancient Near Eastern Dates and Periods

For dates of ancient Near Eastern periods and rulers, consult the appropriate chapter in ed. Jack M. Sasson, ed., Civilizations of the Ancient Near East, 4 vols. (New York: Scribner's Sons, 1995; repr., 4 vols. in 2; Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 2000), volume 2, part 5 ("History and Culture"). More detailed information may be found in the chronological tables included throughout Amélie Kuhrt, The Ancient Near East c. 3000–330 BC, 2 vols. (London: Routledge, 1995). Unless dates for rulers and dynasties are themselves the subject of discussion, it is convenient to use the Middle Chronology for citing dates for Egypt, Mesopotamia, and Anatolia, especially those before the first millennium BCE. Whichever chronology (High, Middle, or Low) is being used, the author should state it explicitly. All dates should be given in full: thus, 587–539 BCE. For Egypt, capitalize Dynasty but lowercase period: thus, Eighteenth Dynasty, Early Dynastic period, Middle Kingdom period, First Intermediate period, Late period, classical period, Hellenistic period; for Mesopotamia, use Akkadian period, Old Babylonian period, Ur III Dynasty, and so forth.

Persian period	539/500–323 BCE
Hellenistic period	323–37 BCE
Roman period	37 BCE–324 CE
Byzantine period	324–1453 CE

4.3.7.3 Islamic Dates

It is preferable to indicate significant dates in premodern Islamic history (especially death dates) according to both the Hijri and the Gregorian calendars. The Hijri calendar began on Safar 26 (13 June 622) with Muhammad’s departure from Mecca; as such, all events relevant to Islamic history after this point should be marked as 1/622, 2/623, and so on. In instances when the precise date in either calendar is known, authors are encouraged to convert dates accurately (easily done through any number of conversion programs or websites). In many instances, however, if only the year is known in one calendar, the range of possibility in the other should be acknowledged, for example, if an author is known to have died in 900 AH (anno Hegirae), this corresponds to 1494–1495 CE (Common Era).

Generally for dates after 1900, the year is given only according to the Western calendar and not the Hijri calendar.

- 5.9 Transcribing Ancient Texts

The choice of how to present an ancient language in a given work will depend on the nature and purpose of the work. For example, a work that seeks to facilitate reading for a general readership may use a general-purpose transliteration style, while a work that includes comparisons of word formation in several Semitic languages will require a more precise transliteration style.

This section provides instructions for cases in which transliterations of ancient texts are to be used. Although some use “transliteration” to refer to both kinds of representation distinguished below, precisely understood transliteration is the conversion of a text from one script into another. It is not concerned with representing the phonology (pronunciation) of the original. Rather, it seeks to represent the characters accurately by presenting the most appropriate values of the individual signs. In contrast, transcription seeks to transcribe the phonology of a language.

The project editor will decide in consultation with the author whether Hebrew, Greek, and other ancient languages will be represented in their own alphabets or transliterated into the Latin alphabet. In general, there is rarely any reason to transliterate Greek in works intended for scholarly readers; for Semitic languages, transliteration may be preferable when it facilitates comparison of cognate forms.

In general, a work should be consistent in its use of transliteration over non-Latin characters and vice versa. If both transliteration and non-Latin characters are used in a single work, the rationale for doing so should be logical and easy to grasp. The project editor is responsible for ensuring that collected works conform to a single style.

5.1 HEBREW

The author should select a Hebrew transliteration convention that reflects the level of precision appropriate to the argumentation and the intended audience. An author may adopt one of two systems: (1) a fully reversible academic style that allows the reader to reproduce the Hebrew characters exactly (consonants and vowels); or (2) an essentially phonetic general-purpose style.¹

For the sake of simplicity and consistency between §5.1.1 and §5.1.2, this edition of the handbook recommends and uses general-purpose spellings for the names of Hebrew consonants, vowels, and binyanim.

5.1.1.4 Notes

- (1) The consonants he, vav, and yod, used to indicate long vowels (matres lectionis), are transliterated as a circumflex over the vowel: â, ê, î, ô, û; they are also taken into account when a transliteration reproduces an unpointed text (extrabiblical inscriptions, Qumran texts, ketiv, etc.) and for the purposes of alphabetization. With a final he, distinguish between the feminine singular possessive ending (malkâh, “her king”) and the feminine ending -â (malkâ, “queen”): the הֿ (hê with a mappiq) should be written as -âh.
- (2) Always transliterate quiescent aleph using ’: e.g., lô’, “not”; hû’, “he”; rô’s, “head”; Aramaic malkâ’, “the king.”
- (3) Transliterate short vowels that are written fully as i(w), o(w), u(w): e.g., hu(w)kkâ for הוּכָהּ.

- (4) Do not indicate begadkepat spirantization (absence of dagesh forte) unless it is important to the discussion. Exceptions may be shown by underlining the consonant: e.g., לְקַתְּאֵל = yoqtē'ēl (see GKC §21).
- (5) Indicate dagesh forte by doubling the consonant. A euphonic dagesh should not be doubled: e.g., מַה־שְׂמוֹ = mah-šēmô (see GKC §20).
- (6) A silent shewa is not transliterated, including when it is the second of two shewas at the end of a word: e.g., 'att for אֵט; yādalt for אֵדֵלֵךְ.
- (7) Do not mark stress unless it is relevant to a particular point. If stress is relevant, use an acute mark for the primary accent and a grave mark for secondary accent.
- (8) Do not capitalize transliterated proper names, although every transliteration should be capitalized at the beginning of a sentence.
- (9) Use a hyphen to indicate a maqep.

5.1.2.3 Notes

- (1) For the names of the binyanim in the general-purpose style, see §5.1.1.3.
- (2) When spelling Hebrew terms that begin with the definite article (ha), capitalize only the first letter of the word, and do not double the following consonant; thus, Birkat Hatorah (not Birkat HaTorah or Birkat haTorah or Birkat Hattorah).
- (3) Spirant forms (dagesh lene) are optional, based upon convention and appearance. (In modern Hebrew, the presence or absence of the dagesh lene generally affects the pronunciation of only bet, kaf, and pe of the begadkepat letters.) The main guideline is that any given decision should remain consistent throughout a manuscript.
- (4) Doubled forms (dagesh forte) should be doubled in transliteration (e.g., hinneh). The two exceptions to this doubling rule are צ (ts) and שׁ (sh); these two consonants should not be doubled (e.g., $\text{מִשָּׁה} = \text{masha}'$).

5.2 ARAMAIC

The systems described above for Hebrew are to be followed, even though tserē and holem are frequently not markers of long vowels in Aramaic.

5.3 GREEK

Whereas for Hebrew both academic and general-purpose transliteration styles are provided, for Greek only a general-purpose style is provided; for academic readers, Greek should be given in Greek characters. (In books meant for a broad audience, editors may elect to use a Greek font only in notes and parentheses, transliterating Greek words that are necessary in the main text.) Thus no provision is made for transliteration of iōta subscript, diaeresis, digamma, accents, and the like; where these matter, use a Greek font.

5.3.2 Notes

- (1) When a gamma appears before a γ, κ, ξ, or χ (gamma nasal), it is transliterated n.
- (2) The vowels ēta and ōmega should be indicated with a macron.
- (3) Initial ῥ is transliterated rh. The second rhō in medial double rhō is also transliterated rh: e.g., Πύρρος = Pyrrhos.
- (4) When upsilon is part of a diphthong, it is transliterated u (au, eu, ēu, ou, ui). When it appears independently, it is transliterated y: e.g., κύριος = kyrios, not kurios.
- (5) The rough breathing mark (´) is transliterated h preceding an initial vowel or diphthong: e.g., ὕμνος = hymnos; αἵρεσις = hairesis.

5.4 COPTIC

The transliteration of Coptic should follow Bentley Layton, A Coptic Grammar: With Chrestomathy and Glossary: Sahidic Dialect, 3rd ed. (Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 2011).

Character	Transliteration	Character	Transliteration
Ⲁ	alpha	Ⲁ	pi

Ⲑ	iōta	Ⲑ	ōmega
Ⲓ	kappa	Ⲓ	šai
Ⲕ	lamda	Ⲕ	fai
Ⲗ	mi	Ⲗ	hori
Ⲙ	ni	Ⲙ	djandja
Ⲛ	ksi	Ⲛ	kyima
Ⲝ	omicron	Ⲝ	ti

For the Achmimic and Boharic ḥay, use ḥ. For the supralinear stroke, use a superscripted italic e (e.g., ⲙⲡⲬⲪⲟⲈⲐⲚⲤ, mpčoeis).

5.5 AKKADIAN

The transliteration of Akkadian should consistently follow either A. Leo Oppenheim et al., eds., The Assyrian Dictionary of the Oriental Insitue of the University of Chicago, 26 vols. (Chicago: The Oriental Institute, 1956–2010 [= CAD]) or Wolfram von Soden, Akkadisches Handwörterbuch, 3 vols. (Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 1965–1981 [= AHW]), with the following alphabetic representation.

Transliteration: a, b, d, e, g, ḥ, ṯ, i, y, k, l, m, n, p, q, r, s, š, ṣ, t, ṭ, u, w, z

Sumerian logograms should be set in small caps and, as opposed to Akkadian words, never in italics. If relying on von Soden's AHw, one should avoid the use of j when transliterating Akkadian in English articles; y should always be used instead. Determinatives should be set as superscript lowercase letters.

Whereas in Akkadian one should use acute and grave accents for the second and third homophonic signs (íl, il, ú, ù) and subscript numerical indexes for the fourth and following ones (u₄, u₅, etc.), in transliterating Sumerograms (or actual Sumerian from a Sumerian text) subscript numerical indexes should be used for all homophonic signs; thus, Sumerograms in Akkadian texts: U₂, U₃, U₄, U₅, U₆; Sumerian in Sumerian texts: u₂, u₃, u₄, u₅, u₆.

The rules for the Hebrew general-purpose style (§5.1.2) can be applied when transliterating in a nontechnical format (e.g., misharum instead of mīšarum).

When writing Assyrian names in English, always use Assur for both the city and the deity (not Ashur or Ashshur), Assurbanipal (not Ashurbanipal), and so on.

5.6 EGYPTIAN

Egyptian transliteration follows either Alan H. Gardiner, Egyptian Grammar, 3rd ed. (London: Oxford University Press, 1957), 26–27; or Rainer Hannig, Grosses Handwörterbuch Ägyptisch-Deutsch (2800–950 v. Chr.): Die Sprache der Pharaonen, Kulturgeschichte der antiken Welt 64 (Mainz: von Zabern, 1995), xxxvii–xxxviii.

Transliteration: ʒ, ì (j in Hannig), y, ^ˁ, w, b, p, f, m, n, r, h, ḥ, ḫ, ḥ, s (z and s in Hannig), š, k (q in Hannig), k, g, t, ṭ, d, ḏ

In general, the sign k should be avoided; use q instead.

For current treatment of the Egyptian language, see Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian: A Linguistic Introduction (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1995); and Hannig's Grosses Handwörterbuch Ägyptisch-Deutsch, which includes an excellent discussion of various systems of Egyptian transliterations on pages xxxvi–xlii.

5.7 UGARITIC

Ugaritic transliteration generally follows Josef Tropper, Ugaritische Grammatik, 2nd ed. (Münster: Ugarit-Verlag, 2012), 11, 28, 90–91.

Transliteration: a, i, u, b, g, d, ḏ, h, w, z, ḥ, ḫ, t, z, y, k, l, m, n, s, š, ^ˁ, ḡ, p, ṣ, q, r, š, t, ṭ

Note that a, i, and u do not indicate simple vowels but the variously vocalized glottal stop ʔ. Other conventions use the character g for the voiced velar ḡ, but the latter is preferable in the light of the standards employed for other Semitic languages.

5.8 OTHER ANCIENT LANGUAGES

5.8.1 Sumerian

There are currently several competing systems for transliterating Sumerian. For reasons of clarity and simplicity, one should follow the traditional system as established by Miguel Civil and others, which one can find in the first edition of Rykle Borger, Mesopotamisches Zeichenlexikon (Münster: Ugarit-Verlag, 2003): a, e, i, u, b, d, g, η, ḫ (or h), k, l, m, n, p, r, s, š, t, w, y, z. The new readings introduced in the second edition of Borger's Zeichenlexikon (2010) are not preferred. When it occurs in running text, Sumerian should not be transliterated in italics but rather in expanded font (in MSWord set font spacing to "expanded" by "1 pt"; in InDesign set tracking to 100). As opposed to Akkadian, one should use a simple h rather than ḫ, and, if ever used, the nasal velar can be written η. For the use of subscript numerical indexes, see §5.5.

5.8.2 Hittite

Hittite should be transliterated in italics. SBL Press recommends using a simple h rather than ḫ. However, if the author has a preference with regard to s versus š and h versus ḫ and has been consistent, that preference should be allowed to stand.

Transliteration: a, e, i, h (or ḫ), g/k, l, m, n, o, b/p, r, s (or š), d/t, u, z

For Sumerograms and Akkadograms in Hittite texts, use the current Hittitological standards, as in Harry A. Hoffner Jr. and H. Craig Melchert, A Grammar of the Hittite Language (Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2008), §§1.13–14.

When writing Hittite names in English, write Hattusa (not Hattusha, Hattushash, or Hattusas), Mursili (not Murshilish or Murshili), and so on; do not use sh, and drop the nominative case ending -š.

5.8.3 Ammonite, Edomite, and Moabite

Transcriptions of Ammonite, Edomite, and Moabite most often present consonants only in an unvocalized text. One should use the same transcription scheme as for academic Hebrew (§5.1.1.1), except that only š (not ś) is used in these languages.

5.8.4 Phoenician

For Phoenician, see Charles R. Krahmalkov, A Phoenician-Punic Grammar, HOS 1/54 (Leiden: Brill, 2001).

5.8.5 Old Persian and Other Ancient Iranian Languages

For Old Persian and ancient Iranian in general, follow Rüdiger Schmitt, in Compendium linguarum iranicarum, ed. Rüdiger Schmitt (Wiesbaden: Reichert, 1989), 62–65, 87–90.

5.8.6 Syriac and Mandaic

Depending on the nature of the text, Syriac and Mandaic may be transliterated either by rendering only the consonants or offering fully vocalized words. For transliteration of Syriac, see George A. Kiraz, Tūrrāš Mamllā: A Grammar of the Syriac Language, 1: Orthography (Piscataway, NJ: Gorgias, 2012), 31–90. For transliteration of Mandaic, one should follow Rudolf Macuch, Handbook of Classical and Modern Mandaic (Berlin: de Gruyter, 1965), 9–26.

5.8.8.3 Notes

- (1) Long vowels should be indicated with a macron (ā, ī, ū), and the so-called emphatic consonants need to be properly noted as well: ṭ, ṣ, ḍ, ẓ. Diphthongs may be indicated simply with a double letter (aw, ay).

- (2) Instead of using underlined consonants, one should write th (not ṭ) for ث and dh (not ḍ) for ذ, even if the digraphs th and dh can create some ambiguities.
- (3) One must distinguish between hamzah and ‘ayn, but the former should not be indicated in transliteration when it occurs in initial position, thus alif rather than ‘alif, amr rather than ‘amr.
- (4) Many archaeological sites of relevance to the history of the ancient Near East, the Greco-Roman world, late antiquity, and Islam are commonly known by their modern names in colloquial Arabic. These place names should not be fully transliterated but rather given according to their most recognizable form, such as Qal‘at Sherqat (ancient Assur), Abu Simbel, Bu Njem (ancient Golaia), Deir Sim‘an or Qal‘at Sim‘an, or Quṣayr ‘Amra. See the list at §4.3.3.4.
- (5) The final feminine marker tā’ marbūṭah should be explicitly indicated with a final -h and with a final -t in the construct state (iḏāfah) (e.g., shī‘at ‘Alī, Sūrat al-Mā’idah).
- (6) Case endings should generally be omitted in transliteration unless they are germane to the discussion. Indicating tanwīn is optional. An exception must be made when the noun has a suffix attached, in which instance the case ending must be recognized, such as fi ṣudūrihim.
- (7) Proper names in transliteration should not be capitalized: “Powers’ theories concerning the development of early Muslim attitudes toward inheritance center on the interpretation of a well-known qur’anic verse, ‘Muhammad is not the father of any of your men; rather, he is the Messenger of God and the Seal of the Prophets’ (mā kāna muḥammad abā aḥad min rijālikum wa-lakin rasūl allāh wa-khātīm al-nabiyyīn; Q Aḥzāb 33:40).”
- (8) In indicating ligatures caused by elision, greater precision is preferable as long as the vocalized text being rendered remains readily recognizable. A short or long vowel eliding with the definite article al- should be indicated with an apostrophe, as should other elisions. Assimilation of the definite article to following “sun letters” (ḥurūf shamsiyyah) should be ignored in transliteration, for example, al-nās and not an-nās. Attached conjunctions (wa-, fa-) should be joined with a simple hyphen, except if elision occurs; attached prepositions should also be joined with a hyphen, unless they are joined to a pronomial suffix, in which case the hyphen is omitted. Note the following examples:

fa-tūbū ilā bāri‘ikum fa’qtulū anfusakum (Q Baqarah 2:54)

a-lam ta‘lam anna allāh lahu mulk al-samawāt wa’l-arḍ (Q Baqarah 2:107)

tanazzalu’l-malā’ikah wa’l-rūḥ fihā bi-ithn rabbihim min kull amr (Q Qadr 97:4)

wa-min sbarr al-nafāthāt fi’l-‘uqad (Q Falaq 113:4)

To emphasize rhyme scheme or continuity of thought, multiple verses may be transcribed with a slash indicating the division, as follows:

fa-ammā man thaqulat mawāzinuhu / fa-huwa fi ‘ishah rāḍiyah (Q Qārī‘ah 101:6–7) a-lam tara kayf fa‘ala rabbuka bi-aṣḥāb al-fil / a-lam ta‘jal kaydahum fi taḍlil (Q Fil 105:1–2)

5.8.9 Turkish

With Turkish words, preserve ğ, ç, and ş, as well as the distinction between ı and i (and I versus İ). When providing Turkish place names in an English context, it is permissible to replace ğ with gh, as in Boghazköy.

5.9 TRANSCRIBING ANCIENT TEXTS

When citing or discussing ancient texts, the following symbols and conventions should be used:

[]	in both transliteration and translation, brackets indicate reconstructed text or gaps. [...] indicates a gap of indeterminate length; [x x] indicates a break of approximately x signs
[]	in both transliteration and translation, half brackets indicate characters, signs, or sequences that are only partly readable (damaged but recognizable)
()	1. in English translations, parentheses are used for additions to improve the sense 2. in transcriptions, parentheses enclose signs restored from a duplicate when placed within square brackets
*	in discussions of grammatical and lexical items, asterisk preceding a term indicates an unattested form
§	section markers used to cite a natural division of a text (e.g., Code of Hammurabi §10) or a published division (e.g., ARAB 2 §808)
x or o	illegible sign/trace
< >	in cuneiform transliteration, encloses sign(s) inadvertently omitted by the scribe
« »	errant scribal insertion; enclosed sign(s) to be ignored
* *	encloses signs written over an erasure or over other sign traces
?	reading/restoration of sign uncertain
(?)	reading/restoration of word/phrase uncertain
⸎	in Hebrew, indicates a damaged letter
⸏	in Hebrew, deletion dots written by the scribe
+⸏⸏⸏+	in Hebrew, alternate word
{ }	in Hebrew, letter(s) erased by the scribe and space left on the leather; in English translation, word(s) indicated by scribe as alternative

However symbols are used, authors should provide a list in the front matter.

Authors are responsible for supplying complete, accurate, and stylistically correct notes and bibliographies (see §§2.1.3.7–8). This includes checking carefully to be certain that all the notes correctly match their reference numbers in the body text and that the body text contains no extra or duplicate reference numbers.

Some publishers, including SBL Press, prefer the traditional documentation style that uses footnotes and bibliographies, but other publishers use endnotes, and for some books author-date citations are appropriate. As the footnote-endnote issue is a production matter, authors normally need not be overconcerned with placement of notes (see §2.1.3.8); more fundamental are decisions about whether to use social-scientific or traditional humanities methods of documentation, and these decisions should be made (and agreed upon with the publisher) before a manuscript is prepared.

With the author-date format, the reference list (or “Works Cited”) should include all the works, and only the works, referred to in text notes. For books using the traditional format, the bibliography may cite exactly the same books referred to in notes, or it may cite a subset of these (a “select bibliography”), or it may cite the books mentioned in the notes plus others. Including citations in both notes and bibliography facilitates the work of the reader.

For books and articles using the traditional format, complete publication data should be supplied in the first note referring to a given source. Subsequent notes in the same work referring to the same source should use the abbreviated note form exhibited in the examples in §§6.2–4, including a shortened form of the main title of the work cited. The shortened title should include key words occurring as close to the beginning of the title as possible and with the word order unchanged. Titles of four words or less are not shortened.

Standard abbreviations for journal titles and series (for which see §8.4) should be used in both the notes and the bibliography. A separate list of all abbreviations used should be included in the book (normally at the end of the book’s front matter). It is our practice to abbreviate ed. and trans. in notes and in bibliographies when they do not begin a sentence and to spell out edited by and translated by when the words appear at the beginning of sentences in a bibliography.

6.1 RULES

6.1.1 Sequence of Information

As a general rule, the sequence of publication information is as follows:

- Author(s) or, if there is no author, editor(s)
- Title of chapter or journal article
- Title of book (including subtitle) or periodical
- Editor, compiler, and/or translator
- Edition if not the first
- Volumes: if citing the whole work, give the total number of volumes; if only a single volume is cited, list that volume number and the title of the volume
- Series title and/or volume number
- Details of publication: city, publisher, and/or date
- Volume and/or page numbers (In bibliographical listings of chapters in a book, this information typically precedes the book title.)
- Electronic source information if applicable

Generally, only a select portion of this material is necessary, depending in part on how thorough the bibliography is (the aim is mainly to provide readers sufficient information to allow them quickly to locate the precise volume in a library and secondarily to credit the people whose work has been most directly relied upon; for an illustration, see §6.2.14). Colons precede page numbers in journal articles, and colons separate volume and page numbers in books. Commas separate book titles (with their associated publishing information) from page numbers in book citations.

In a departure from the first edition of this handbook, we now follow CMS footnote style, which places the basic “facts of publication” (city, publisher, and date) in parentheses and all “secondary” publication information outside of the parentheses. The style is clear throughout §§6.2–6.4 below.

6.1.2 Author or Editor

6.1.2.1 Modern Authors

Whenever possible, the author’s or editor’s full first name and middle name or initial (not just a first initial) should be provided. But if an author has made a habit of using initials rather than full given names, there is no need to supply those names. (Thus, even if one consistently lists first names and middle initials, one would cite W. D. Davies, not William D. or William David Davies.) Initials should always be followed by a period, and a (preferably nonbreaking) word space should separate initials. Multiple references to the same author in a bibliography should be conformed to the same style; regardless of how names appear on title pages, authors should not be listed under one name for one work and under a different form of their name for another work. For issues of capitalization, names with particles, and the citing of non-English names, see §7.2 and CMS §§8.4–17.

6.1.2.2 Ancient Authors

Ancient works may be listed in bibliographies either under the name of the premodern author or under the name of the modern editor, but all premodern works should be treated the same. If works are listed by premodern author, the standard English spelling of the name should be used regardless of the spelling on the title page of the work being cited: Aristotle (not Aristote or Aristoteles), Sophocles (not Sophokles), Jerome (not Hieronymus), Augustine (not Augustinus or Augustin), and so on. The standard English spellings may be found as headings in library catalogs. Where necessary, fuller forms of names may be used: Eusebius of Caesarea, Cyril of Jerusalem, Athanasius of Alexandria, and so on.

6.1.2.3 Latinized Names

Similarly, when citing premodern Latin works, one should give the author's name in its native form, not in the artificially Latinized form that is likely to appear on the title page (and not in an even more artificial nominative version of the Latin). For example, in citing his Demonstratio evangelica, one would list Pierre-Daniel Huet rather than Petri Danielis Huetii (or Petrus Daniel Huetius). One may rely on the Library of Congress website (<http://catalog.loc.gov>) or WorldCat (<http://www.worldcat.org>) for standard cataloging information.

6.1.3 Title

6.1.3.1 Punctuation

Typefaces and design features on the title pages of books frequently allow punctuation to be omitted. In citing a book, therefore, punctuation must often be added and may even be altered: except when double punctuation would result (e.g., following a question mark or exclamation point), a colon (not a period, semicolon, comma, or dash) should separate the title and subtitle. This rule may be applied regardless of the punctuation or lack thereof on the title page and regardless of the language of the book. Use a comma before a range of years at the end of a title unless the title page uses parentheses. Use semicolons between titles of separate works published in the same binding. Retain any dashes that are present in the original title.

6.1.3.2 Format of Abbreviations, Foreign Terms, and Included Titles

When abbreviations such as BCE and CE are used in a book title, they should be set in full caps, not small caps, and italicized to agree with the rest of the title. When non-English words are used in an English title, they should ordinarily be italicized to match the rest of the title (see CMS §§8.171, 14.103). Titles within titles should be set off by quotation marks (even though they are titles of books) and should be capitalized in the same style as the title that includes them. See CMS §§8.163, 8.171, and 14.102.

Ampersands found in original titles should be changed to and in notes or bibliographical entries. Likewise, except in the case of foreign language titles, digits that would ordinarily be spelled out in running text should be spelled out in citations (e.g., 2nd Century becomes Second Century).

6.1.3.3 Capitalization of Titles in English

In English titles, all words should be capitalized except articles, coordinating conjunctions, and prepositions (the first and last words in the title or subtitle are, however, capitalized regardless of their part of speech). Even longer prepositions, including not only single words (such as between and among) but also phrases that are given their own entries and classed as prepositions in Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary (such as according to, owing to, and due to), are lowercased. Other phrases (such as based on or in spite of) that might seem analogous but are not given such entries in this dictionary are not treated as prepositions. Always capitalize the first of two or more full words connected by hyphens; capitalize subsequent words unless they are articles, coordinating conjunctions, or prepositions that are not used adverbially. Words following a prefix (as opposed to a full word) are capitalized only if they are proper nouns or proper adjectives. For examples, see CMS §8.159.

6.1.3.4 Capitalization of Titles Not in English

For titles in languages other than English, the general rule is to capitalize only the first word of the title or subtitle and any words that would be capitalized in a normal sentence. For most languages, only proper nouns (but not proper adjectives) are capitalized. In German, nouns are capitalized, and in Dutch, proper adjectives are capitalized. For more on titles in particular languages see §§6.1.3.7–9.

6.1.3.5 Series and Multivolume Works

Series titles are set roman; titles of multivolume works are set italic. Some works could be classified either way. SBL Press treats the following as series titles:

Patrologia Graeca (for Patrologiae Cursus Completus, Series Graeca)
Patrologia Latina (for Patrologiae Cursus Completus, Series Latina)
Patrologia Orientalis
 Sources chrétiennes

SBL Press treats the following as multivolume works:

Ante-Nicene Fathers
Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt
Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, First Series
Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, Second Series

6.1.3.6 Primary Sources

In the body of a manuscript, cite primary sources, including biblical texts, parenthetically, inside the final punctuation. Thus,

In Luke, for example, it is the lawyer who cites the double command, whereas in Matthew and Mark it is Jesus (Matt 22:37–40; Mark 12:29–31).

All of this occurred “in the ninth year of King Zedekiah of Judah, in the tenth month” (Jer 39:1).

Examples of how to cite some specific texts such as ANF, NPNF, and LCL texts in parentheses and in notes and bibliographies appear in §6.4.

If indicating the translation is important, insert it following the reference.

From Luke's point of view, "the kingdom of God is among you" (Luke 17:21 NRSV).

Likewise, if a longer passage is cited as an excerpt, the source should appear within parentheses, but this time outside the final punctuation. In excerpted material, the translator should be included unless an earlier statement has indicated the source of the translation for a given work or corpus. Thus,

Therefore according to the circumstances and temper and even age of each is the delay of baptism more profitable, yet especially in the case of little children. For where is the need of involving sponsors also in danger? They too through mortality may fail to perform their promises, or may be deceived by the growth of an evil disposition. (Tertullian, De baptismo 18 [Gwatkin])

If the translation is referred to consistently, a note at the first instance indicating which edition and translation are used throughout the manuscript is appropriate.

For citing primary sources in notes and bibliographies, see §6.4.1.

6.1.3.7 French Titles

SBL style treats French like other modern languages, capitalizing titles according to the general rule given in §6.1.3.4 and retaining the accents on uppercase vowels.

6.1.3.8 Latin Titles

SBL style follows general convention (as concisely summarized in CMS §11.59) by treating premodern and modern Latin titles differently. In short, premodern Latin titles receive sentence-style capitalization, while modern Latin titles receive headline capitalization.

Latin titles of premodern works (in Latin, Greek, or other languages) are capitalized in accord with the general rule given in §6.1.3.4: capitalize only the first word of the title (or subtitle) and any proper nouns (but not proper adjectives) included in the title. In accord with the practice of the Stuttgart edition of the Vulgate, we include as proper nouns not only names of persons and places but also various appellations of God: Deus, Pater, Filius (and so Filioque), Trinitas, and other terms when they are clearly used as alternative names of the deity (Verbum, Creator, etc.).

De divinis officiis

De incarnatione

De glorificatione Trinitatis

De Sancta Trinitate et operibus eius

De vita Cuthberti

In Aristotelis analyticorum priorum librum i commentarium

When one book title occurs within another, the included title is capitalized as if it were standing alone.

When an adjective is so closely associated with a proper noun that the two form in effect a compound noun, both words are capitalized:

Sancta Trinitas, Sanctus Augustinus, Sanctus Spiritus, Beata Virgo Maria

“Modern works” for the purposes of this section includes Renaissance and later treatises and books. It also includes journals, series (including series of modern editions of ancient works), and Latin phrases used as modern designations of corpora of ancient works.

Printed editions of ancient and medieval works often have long Latin titles that are really complete sentences comprising the name of the ancient writer, the title of the work, and the name and contribution of each modern editor involved in the product. Library catalogers usually insert a colon between the main title and further descriptive information and then a slash before the part of the sentence that identifies the modern editor(s). In notes and bibliographies, the title may be truncated at the colon, but if it is not, this added punctuation (and the slash) should not be retained.

In a bibliography, if the works of St. Anselm are listed under the editor’s name, then Sancti Anselmi would be retained as part of the title. If they are listed under Anselm’s name, Sancti Anselmi should be deleted from the title.

Thus the title Sancti Anselmi ex Beccensi abbate Cantuariensis archiepiscopi opera: nec non Eadmeri monachi Cantuariensis Historia novorum, et alia opuscula/labore ac studio d. Gabrielis Gerberon monachi congregationis S. Mauri ad mss. fidem expurgata et aucta could be listed in either of the following ways:

Gerberon, Gabriel, ed. Sancti Anselmi ex Beccensi Abbate Cantuariensis archiepiscopi Opera. Paris, 1675.

Anselm of Canterbury. Opera. Edited by Gabriel Gerberon. Paris, 1675.

Latin terms for the Bible (roman if referring to the Bible itself, italic when used as the title for a particular published edition):

Biblia Hebraica, Biblia Vulgata, Novum Testamentum, Vetus Testamentum

Latin journal titles:

Vigiliae Christianae, Vetus Testamentum, Sacris Erudiri

Series titles:

Analecta Gregoriana
Compendia Rerum Iudaicarum ad Novum Testamentum
Corpus Christianorum: Continuatio Mediaevalis
Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum
Monumenta Germaniae Historica
Patrologia Latina
Patrologia Orientalis

Actual practice in books and in library catalogs varies widely; the rules given here are suggestions meant to help authors and editors who must decide what practice to follow in particular cases. There may be exceptions to the general rules delineated above for Latin titles. For example:

- Just as Latin titles of modern books written in English are capped headline style (Alfred North Whitehead and Bertrand Russell, Principia Mathematica), Latin titles of medieval or ancient works, when cited in contexts where most other titles are modern, may be capped headline style (e.g., a citation of Thomas Aquinas, Summa Theologica, in a context where the other works referenced are all or nearly all modern or are cited in modern English translations with English titles).
- Latin titles of works with subtitles in another foreign language may be capitalized in accord for the rule for that language (e.g., Index scriptorum operumque latino-belgicorum medii aevi: Nouveau répertoire des oeuvres médiolatines belges).

Latin series titles in bibliographic entries for books with titles in modern languages other than English should be capitalized in accord with the usual rules for Latin (e.g., still Monumenta Germaniae Historica when listed as the series for a German-titled book).

6.1.3.9 Titles in Other Languages; Non-Latin Alphabets

Titles of modern works in Hebrew and other languages that use non-Latin alphabets should ordinarily be given in translation only, and the original language should be indicated in parentheses. When for sufficient reason a title is given in the original language, we still recommend adding a translation in square brackets. Capitalize only the first word and proper nouns of translations and (as appropriate) of the original titles. If Hebrew is transliterated, use the general-purpose style given in §5.1.2.

Even titles in languages that use the Latin or modified Latin alphabet should be translated if authors anticipate that most of their readers will be unable to read the original. Whether one merely translates the title and specifies the original language in parentheses or cites the actual title followed by a translation will involve editorial judgment and consideration of the benefits to the target audience. In any case, one should be consistent in treating all titles that fall into this category. See CMS §§14.107–108. See §6.2.11 for an example.

6.1.4 Publication Information

6.1.4.1 Names of Presses

The publisher's name should be abbreviated in footnotes and bibliographies by the omission of Press, Publishing Company, and other such terms except in the case of university presses and wherever else ambiguity or awkwardness would result.

An ampersand should be used in a publisher's name rather than and (e.g., T&T Clark; Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht; Farrar, Straus & Giroux). Note that the serial comma is omitted before an ampersand.

Presses named after a founder or family member are generally identified by the founder's last name only (e.g., Brill rather than E. J. Brill; Eerdmans rather than Wm. B. Eerdmans). Presses named after a historical figure who was not a founder are identified by the full name (e.g., John Knox rather than Knox).

The following list provides the preferred bibliographical forms of publishers' names. The list also indicates the most common places of publication for the publishers. Although some entries include two or more locations, only the first place listed on the title or copyright page of the work being cited should be included in a bibliographical citation. Note further that the list indicates when a city needs to be identified further by adding a state, province, or country: if no state, province, or country is given for a publisher below, it may be omitted in all citations.

6.1.4.2 Place of Publication

If the title or copyright page lists more than one city, only the first city should ordinarily be used in the bibliography and notes (see CMS §14.135). When the city or publisher is not well known, reference to the state or country should be included. Be careful to do this consistently; thus if you name “Grand Rapids, MI” in one citation, you must include the state in every other citation of a publisher in Grand Rapids. On the use of two-letter postal abbreviations for state/province references, see §8.1.1.

6.1.4.3 Translating Foreign-Language Publication Information

For foreign-language publications, authors should translate the details of publication (including city of publication and the roles of editors, translators, etc.) into English. When an author has not done so, the copy editor should either translate such information or query the project editor. For example:

Original	Preferred
Basilae	Basel
Berolini	Berlin
Bruxelles	Brussels
Cantabrigiae	Cambridge
Genève	Geneva
Lipsiae	Leipzig
Louvain	Leuven
Lugdunum	Lyon
Lugdunum Batavorum	Leiden
Lutetiae	Paris
München	Munich
Oxonii	Oxford
Wien	Vienna

For treatment of authors' names, see §§6.1.2.2–3.

6.1.4.4 Listing Multiple Publishers

Books are often published cooperatively by a pair of publishers. In such cases, it is necessary to cite both publishers; the two should be listed in their normal way and separated by a semicolon. Places of publication and publishers' names should not be combined and separated by slashes:

Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht; Fribourg: Presses Universitaires

Not: Göttingen/Fribourg: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht/Presses Universitaires

6.1.4.5 Date

The use of n.d. (no date) in place of the year in the publication details should be avoided. In the case of unpublished manuscripts, use the date of the version consulted or the last-modified date in the case of electronic files. Use forthcoming for manuscripts under contract but not yet published (§6.2.19). Manuscripts not under contract are treated as unpublished manuscripts.

6.1.5 Page Numbers

Avoid using f. and ff. for “following” pages; give actual page ranges.

6.1.6 Electronic Sources Information

The last element in a citation will be information about the electronic format cited (PDF e-book; Kindle edition, etc.) or, for online publications, an electronic resource identifier such as a DOI (digital object identifier) or URL (uniform resource locator). DOIs are unique and permanent names assigned to an individual work that will resolve directly to the work regardless of changes in its online location. For this reason, DOIs are preferred to URLs. For more on electronic resource identifiers, see CMS §§14.4–7.

SBL Press no longer recommends including access dates—the date on which the author last consulted a source—as they are unreliable, unverifiable, and unnecessary. Authors should consult with their publisher early, however, as some publishers may require them.

URL addresses are never hyphenated at the end of a line and should be divided before the “dot” or at a “slash” if they must wrap to the next line.

6.2 GENERAL EXAMPLES: BOOKS

The following examples define SBL style for notes and bibliographies more fully than the select rules in §6.1.

6.2.1 A Book by a Single Author

15. Charles H. Talbert, Reading John: A Literary and Theological Commentary on the Fourth Gospel and the Johannine Epistles (New York: Crossroad, 1992), 127.

19. Talbert, Reading John, 22.

Talbert, Charles H. Reading John: A Literary and Theological Commentary on the Fourth Gospel and the Johannine Epistles. New York: Crossroad, 1992.

6.2.2 A Book by Two or Three Authors

4. James M. Robinson and Helmut Koester, Trajectories through Early Christianity (Philadelphia: Fortress, 1971), 237.

12. Robinson and Koester, Trajectories through Early Christianity, 23.

Robinson, James M., and Helmut Koester. Trajectories through Early Christianity. Philadelphia: Fortress, 1971.

6.2.3 A Book by More Than Three Authors

If a work is by more than three authors, simply list one and “et al.” to indicate additional authors (without comma following the first author’s name). All names are generally listed in the bibliographical entry, but “et al.” following the first author’s name (and, in this case, a comma) is permitted.

7. Bernard Brandon Scott et al., Reading New Testament Greek (Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1993), 53.

9. Scott et al., Reading New Testament Greek, 42.

Scott, Bernard Brandon, Margaret Dean, Kristen Sparks, and Frances LaZar. Reading New Testament Greek. Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1993.

6.2.4 A Translated Volume

14. Wilhelm Egger, How to Read the New Testament: An Introduction to Linguistic and Historical-Critical Methodology, trans. Peter Heinegg (Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1996), 28.

18. Egger, How to Read, 291.

6.2.5 The Full History of a Translated Volume

Generally it is unnecessary to present the full history of a translated volume. But if you choose to do so, the following format may be used.

3. Julius Wellhausen, Prolegomena to the History of Ancient Israel (New York: Meridian Books, 1957), 296; repr. of Prolegomena to the History of Israel, trans. J. Sutherland Black and A. Enzies, with preface by W. Robertson Smith (Edinburgh: Black, 1885); trans. of Prolegomena zur Geschichte Israels, 2nd ed. (Berlin: Reimer, 1883).

6.2.8 A Book with Four or More Editors

The same rules apply as in §6.2.3.

4. John F. Oates et al., eds., Checklist of Editions of Greek and Latin Papyri, Ostraca, and Tablets, 5th ed., BASPSup 9 (Oakville, CT: American Society of Papyrologists, 2001), 10.

6.2.9 A Book with Both Author and Editor

45. Edward Schillebeeckx, The Schillebeeckx Reader, ed. Robert J. Schreiter (Edinburgh: T&T Clark, 1986), 20.

Schillebeeckx, Edward. The Schillebeeckx Reader. Edited by Robert J. Schreiter. Edinburgh: T&T Clark, 1986.

6.2.10 A Book with Author, Editor, and Translator

3. Friedrich Blass and Albert Debrunner, Grammatica del greco del Nuovo Testamento, ed. Friedrich Rehkopf, trans. Giordana Pisi (Brescia: Paideia, 1982), 40.

Blass, Friedrich, and Albert Debrunner. Grammatica del greco del Nuovo Testamento. Edited by Friedrich Rehkopf. Translated by Giordana Pisi. Brescia: Paideia, 1982.

6.2.11 A Title in a Modern Work Citing Words in a Non-Latin Alphabet

When citing a title containing non-Latin characters, it is permissible (although not SBL Press preference) to represent such characters as transliteration. Indicate to readers that the transliteration is not original by setting it within brackets, as in the following:

34. Stuart A. Irvine, "Idols [ktbwnm]: A Note on Hosea 13:2a," JBL 133 (2014): 509–17.

See also §6.1.3.9.

6.2.12 An Article in an Edited Volume

3. Harold W. Attridge, "Jewish Historiography," in Early Judaism and Its Modern Interpreters, ed. Robert A. Kraft and George W. E. Nickelsburg (Philadelphia: Fortress; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1986), 311–43.

6. Attridge, “Jewish Historiography,” 314–17.

If subsequent references could be confused with another article by the same author, include the information concerning the editors with the short title.

6. Attridge, “Jewish Historiography” (Kraft and Nickelsburg), 314–17.

Additionally, if another article in the same edited volume has already been cited with the full bibliographic information, the short form including information concerning the editors may be used for all other articles in the edited volume cited subsequently:

9. Attridge, “Jewish Historiography,” in Kraft and Nickelsburg, Early Judaism, 314–17.

Attridge, Harold A. “Jewish Historiography.” Pages 311–43 in Early Judaism and Its Modern Interpreters. Edited by Robert A. Kraft and George W. E. Nickelsburg. Philadelphia: Fortress; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1986.

6.2.13 An Article in a Festschrift

Bibliographies should use the full title.

8. John Van Seters, “The Theology of the Yahwist: A Preliminary Sketch,” in “Wer ist wie du, Herr, unter den Göttern?”: Studien zur Theologie und Religionsgeschichte Israels für Otto Kaiser zum 70. Geburtstag, ed. Ingo Kottsieper et al. (Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1995), 219–28.

17. Van Seters, “Theology of the Yahwist,” 222.

6.2.14 An Introduction, Preface, or Foreword Written by Someone Other Than the Author

2. Hendrikus Boers, introduction to How to Read the New Testament: An Introduction to Linguistic and Historical-Critical Methodology, by Wilhelm Egger, trans. Peter Heinegg (Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1996), xi–xxi.

6. Boers, introduction, xi–xx.

Boers, Hendrikus. Introduction to How to Read the New Testament: An Introduction to Linguistic and Historical-Critical Methodology, by Wilhelm Egger. Translated by Peter Heinegg. Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1996.

6.2.15 Multiple Publishers for a Single Book

Birger Gerhardsson, Memory and Manuscript: Oral Tradition and Written Transmission in Rabbinic Judaism and Early Christianity. ASNU 22. Lund: Gleerup; Copenhagen: Munksgaard, 1961.

For treatment of multiple publishers, see §6.1.4.4.

6.2.16 A Revised Edition

87. James B. Pritchard, ed., Ancient Near Eastern Texts Relating to the Old Testament, 3rd ed. (Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1969), xxi.

Pritchard, James B., ed. Ancient Near Eastern Texts Relating to the Old Testament. 3rd ed. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1969.

6.2.18 Reprint of a Title in the Public Domain

See CMS §§4.19–21. When a work is in the public domain, one may omit all except the most relevant information (in the following instance, the translator and original publication date) and supply information about the source from which the book is now available.

5. Gustav Adolf Deissmann, Light from the Ancient East: The New Testament Illustrated by Recently Discovered Texts of the Graeco-Roman World (trans. Lionel R. M. Strachan; 1927; repr., Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1995), 55.

Deissmann, Gustav Adolf. Light from the Ancient East: The New Testament Illustrated by Recently Discovered Texts of the Graeco-Roman World. Translated by Lionel R. M. Strachan. 1927. Repr., Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1995.

6.2.19 A Forthcoming Book

When a book is under contract with a publisher and is already titled, but the date of publication is not yet known, forthcoming is used in place of the date. Books not under contract should be treated as unpublished manuscripts (for which see CMS §§14.224–31).

9. James R. Harrison and L. L. Welborn, eds., The First Urban Churches 2: Roman Corinth, WGRWSup (Atlanta: SBL Press, forthcoming).

12. Harrison and Welborn, Roman Corinth, 201.

6.2.20 A Multivolume Work

5. Adolf Harnack, History of Dogma, trans. Neil Buchanan, 7 vols. (Boston: Little, Brown, 1896–1905).

9. Harnack, History of Dogma, 2:126.

Harnack, Adolf. History of Dogma. Translated from the 3rd German ed. by Neil Buchanan. 7 vols. Boston: Little, Brown, 1896–1905.

6.2.21 A Titled Volume in a Multivolume Work

5. Bruce W. Winter and Andrew D. Clarke, eds., The Book of Acts in Its Ancient Literary Setting, vol. 1 of The Book of Acts in Its First Century Setting, ed. Bruce W. Winter (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1993), 25.

16. Winter and Clarke, Book of Acts, 25.

Winter, Bruce W., and Andrew D. Clarke, eds. The Book of Acts in Its Ancient Literary Setting. Vol. 1 of The Book of Acts in Its First Century Setting. Edited by Bruce W. Winter. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1993.

It is unnecessary when citing a single volume to give information about the total number of volumes in the series. If you need to cite the entire multivolume series, see §6.2.20.

6.2.22 A Chapter within a Multivolume Work

24. Steve Mason, “Josephus on Canon and Scriptures,” in Hebrew Bible/Old Testament: The History of Its Interpretation, ed. Magne Saebø (Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1996), 1.1:217–335.

28. Mason, “Josephus on Canon and Scriptures,” 224.

Mason, Steve. “Josephus on Canon and Scriptures.” Pages 217–35 in vol. 1, part 1 of Hebrew Bible/Old Testament: The History of Its Interpretation. Edited by Magne Saebø. Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1996.

6.2.23 A Chapter within a Titled Volume in a Multivolume Work

66. David Peterson, "The Motif of Fulfilment and the Purpose of Luke-Acts," in The Book of Acts in Its Ancient Literary Setting, ed. Bruce W. Winter and Andrew D. Clarke, vol. 1 of The Book of Acts in Its First Century Setting, ed. Bruce W. Winter (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1993), 83–104.

78. Peterson, "Motif of Fulfilment," 92.

David Peterson, "The Motif of Fulfilment and the Purpose of Luke-Acts." Pages 83–104 in The Book of Acts in Its Ancient Literary Setting. Edited by Bruce W. Winter and Andrew D. Clarke. Vol. 1 of The Book of Acts in Its First Century Setting. Edited by Bruce W. Winter. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1993.

6.2.24 A Work in a Series

Volumes that appear in a series follow the standard note and bibliographic form.

12. Otfried Hofius, Paulusstudien, WUNT 51 (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1989), 122.

14. Hofius, Paulusstudien, 124.

Hofius, Otfried. Paulusstudien. WUNT 51. Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1989.

When a series begins anew, distinguishing between the old and new series can be problematic. Slashes (e.g., SBT 2/18) are often used to denote the new series.

23. Joachim Jeremias, The Prayers of Jesus, SBT 2/6 (Naperville, IL: Allenson, 1967), 123–27.

32. Jeremias, Prayers, 126.

Jeremias, Joachim. The Prayers of Jesus. SBT 2/6. Naperville, IL: Allenson, 1967.

6.2.25 Electronic Book

Books available for download from a library or bookseller are generally available in two main formats: PDF e-books and editions for e-readers, such as Kindle, iPad, and Nook. If citing a PDF e-book that is identical in all respects to the print edition, it is not necessary to indicate the format consulted. However, because other electronic formats do not conform in all respects to the print edition, in those cases authors must indicate the format consulted. The indication of the format follows the publication information:

14. Henning Graf Reventlow, From the Old Testament to Origen. Vol. 1 of History of Biblical Interpretation, trans. Leo G. Perdue (Atlanta: Society of Biblical Literature, 2009), Nook edition, ch. 1.3.

18. Reventlow, From the Old Testament to Origen, ch. 1.3.

Reventlow, Henning Graf. From the Old Testament to Origen. Volume 1 of History of Biblical Interpretation. Translated by Leo G. Perdue. Atlanta: Society of Biblical Literature, 2009. Nook edition.

3. Jacob L. Wright, David, King of Israel, and Caleb in Biblical Memory (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2014), Kindle edition, ch. 3, “Introducing David.”

21. Wright, David, King of Israel, ch. 5, “Evidence from Qumran.”

Jacob L. Wright, David, King of Israel, and Caleb in Biblical Memory. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2014. Kindle edition.

Since e-reader formats do not have stable page numbers, it is preferable to cite the print edition. However, if an alternative format is consulted, in lieu of a page number, include a chapter or section number in the citation, as in the example footnotes above.

When citing an online version of a book, include the DOI. In the absence of a DOI, include the URL in the citation.

53. Ann E. Killebrew and Margreet Steiner, eds., The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of the Levant: c. 8000–332 BCE (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2014), doi:10.1093/oxfordhb/9780199212972.001.0001.

55. Killebrew and Steiner, Archaeology of the Levant.

The format is the same for older works that have been made available freely online:

29. Stephen Kaufman. The Akkadian Influences on Aramaic, AS 19 (Chicago: The Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, 1974), <http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/as19.pdf>.

32. Kaufman, Akkadian Influences on Aramaic, 123.

6.3 GENERAL EXAMPLES: JOURNAL ARTICLES, REVIEWS, AND DISSERTATIONS

6.3.1 A Journal Article

7. Blake Leyerle, “John Chrysostom on the Gaze,” J ECS 1 (1993): 159–74.

23. Leyerle, “John Chrysostom,” 161.

Leyerle, Blake. "John Chrysostom on the Gaze." J ECS 1 (1993): 159–74.

For articles written by more than one author, follow the examples above in §§6.2.2–3. It is unnecessary to include the issue number unless the journal volume is not paginated consecutively. See §6.3.9.

6.3.2 A Journal Article with Multiple Page Locations and Multiple Volumes

21. Hans Wildberger, "Das Abbild Gottes: Gen 1:26–30," TZ 21 (1965): 245–59, 481–501.

Wildberger, Hans. "Das Abbild Gottes: Gen 1:26–30." TZ 21 (1965): 245–59, 481–501.

24. Julius Wellhausen, "Die Composition des Hexateuchs," JDT 21 (1876): 392–450; 22 (1877): 407–79.

Wellhausen, Julius. "Die Composition des Hexateuchs." JDT 21 (1876): 392–450; 22 (1877): 407–79.

If a multiple-part article includes "Part 1," "Part 2," and the like as a part of the title, omit the "part" specification and cite only the primary title. Including a part number in the first reference complicates short-title citations for later references, since one would then need to include the part number as a part of the short-title reference.

6.3.3 A Journal Article Republished in a Collected Volume

It is generally necessary to cite only the version that you consulted, not the complete history.

20. David Noel Freedman, "Pottery, Poetry, and Prophecy: An Essay on Biblical Poetry," JBL 96 (1977): 20

6.3.4 A Book Review

Untitled book reviews may be cited as follows.

8. Howard M. Teeple, review of Introduction to the New Testament, by André Robert and André Feuillet, JBR 34 (1966): 368–70.

21. Teeple, review of Introduction to the New Testament (by Robert and Feuillet), 369.

Teeple, Howard M. Review of Introduction to the New Testament, by André Robert and André Feuillet. JBR 34 (1966): 368–70.

Titled book reviews should be cited as normal journal articles.

Pelikan, Jaroslav. “The Things That You’re Liable to Read in the Bible,” review of The Anchor Bible Dictionary, ed. David Noel Freedman. New York Times Review of Books, 20 December 1992, 3.

Review articles are treated like articles:

7. David Petersen, “Hebrew Bible Textbooks: A Review Article,” CRBR 1 (1988): 1–18.

14. Petersen, “Hebrew Bible Textbooks,” 8.

Petersen, David. “Hebrew Bible Textbooks: A Review Article.” CRBR 1 (1988): 1–18.

6.3.5 An Unpublished Dissertation or Thesis

21. Lee E. Klosinski, "Meals in Mark" (PhD diss., The Claremont Graduate School, 1988), 22–44.

26. Klosinski, "Meals in Mark," 23.

Klosinski, Lee. E. "Meals in Mark." PhD diss., The Claremont Graduate School, 1988.

6.3.6 An Article in an Encyclopedia or a Dictionary

Individual articles in an encyclopedia or a dictionary should be included in the bibliography. The article form applies. It is not necessary to place a comma following the abbreviation preceding the volume and page number. This imitates the rule for journal volumes. Multivolume lexicons, collections of primary sources, and dictionaries are candidates for this special treatment. For examples, see here and in §6.3.7.

33. Krister Stendahl, "Biblical Theology, Contemporary," IDB 1:418–32.

36. Stendahl, "Biblical Theology," 1:419.

Stendahl, Krister. "Biblical Theology, Contemporary." IDB 1:418–32.

6.3.7 An Article in a Lexicon or a Theological Dictionary

For the discussion of a word or a family of words, give the entire title and page range of the article:

3. Karl Dahn and Walter L. Liefeld, "See, Vision, Eye," NIDNTT 3:511–21.

6. Hermann W. Beyer, "διακονέω, διακονία, κτλ," TDNT 2:81–93.

7. Ceslas Spicq, "ἀτακτέω, ἀτακτος, ἀτάκτως," TLNT 1:223–24.

143. Ceslas Spicq, "ἄμοιβή," TLNT 1:95–96.

For the discussion of a specific word in an article covering a larger group of words, name just the word discussed and those pages on which it is discussed:

23. Hermann W. Beyer, "διακονέω," TDNT 2:81–87.

26. Karl Dahn, "ὄραω," NIDNTT 3:511–18.

Subsequent entries need to include only the dictionary volume and page numbers.

25. Beyer, TDNT 2:83.

29. Dahn, NIDNTT 3:511.

147. Spicq, TLNT 1:95.

In the bibliography, cite only the theological dictionary.

Niditch, Susan. “Oral Culture and Written Documents.” Paper presented at the Annual Meeting of the New England Region of the SBL. Worcester, MA, 25 March 1994.

6.3.9 An Article in a Magazine

8. Anthony J. Saldarini, “Babatha’s Story,” BAR 24.2 (1998): 28–33, 36–37, 72–74.

27. Saldarini, “Babatha’s Story,” 28.

Saldarini, Anthony J. “Babatha’s Story.” BAR 24.2 (1998): 28–33, 36–37, 72–74.

Note that issue numbers are included in the previous references because the issues of vol. 24 are paginated separately rather than consecutively; see §6.3.1. Traditionally, the issue numbers in the above examples have been introduced by a comma and the abbreviation “no.” (e.g., BAR 24, no. 2). Unless your publisher objects, SBL Press recommends the simple period.

6.3.10 An Electronic Journal Article

As discussed in §6.1.6, electronic journal article citations should include a DOI (preferred) or a URL. The URL must resolve directly to the page on which the article appears. Both DOI and URL may be included if desired.

43. Carl P. E. Springer, “Of Roosters and Repetitio: Ambrose’s Aeterne rerum conditor,” VC 68 (2014): 155–77, doi:10.1163/15700720-12341158.

6.4 SPECIAL EXAMPLES

6.4.1 Texts from the Ancient Near East

Citing primary sources from the ancient Near East presents special problems for authors and editors. The written materials are diverse. The evidence is ever increasing. The publications of these texts are scattered throughout journals, series, and monographs. Principal editions are not always easy to find, and one may have to gather several volumes to locate the necessary transcriptions, transliterations, and translations. The diverse nature of these texts requires the author and publisher to use a variety of formats, abbreviations, numerations, and symbols. Even at the most basic level—for example, that of the titles of texts—no consistency prevails. Thus, we offer the following paragraphs only as basic guidelines.

6.4.1.1 Citing COS

A translated text from William W. Hallo, ed., The Context of Scripture, 3 vols. (Leiden: Brill, 1997–2002), is cited using the abbreviation COS (+ vol. no. + text no. + pages):

7. "The Great Hymn to the Aten," trans. Miriam Lichtheim (COS 1.26:44–46).

11. "Great Hymn to the Aten," COS 1.26:44–46.

Hallo, William W., ed. Canonical Compositions from the Biblical World. Vol. 1 of The Context of Scripture. Leiden: Brill, 1997.

6.4.1.2 Citing Other Texts

Citing a text can be as easy as citing a well-known translation:

16. “Suppiluliumas and the Egyptian Queen,” trans. Albrecht Goetze (ANET, 319).

Pritchard, James B., ed. Ancient Near Eastern Texts Relating to the Old Testament. 3rd ed. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1969.

5. “Erra and Ishum” (Stephanie Dalley, Myths from Mesopotamia [Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1991], 282–315).

Dalley, Stephanie. Myths from Mesopotamia. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1991.

5. “Erra and Ishum” (Benjamin Foster, Before the Muses: An Anthology of Akkadian Literature [Bethesda, MD: CDL, 1993], 1:771–805).

Foster, Benjamin. Before the Muses: An Anthology of Akkadian Literature. Vol. 1. Bethesda, MD: CDL, 1993.

34. “The Doomed Prince” (Miriam Lichtheim, Ancient Egyptian Literature [Berkeley: University of California Press, 1976], 2:200–203).

36. “The Doomed Prince” (AEL 2:200–203).

Lichtheim, Miriam. Ancient Egyptian Literature. Vol. 2. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1976.

Follow the convention of whatever text edition or translation you cite in your notes and bibliography (for symbols common to ancient Near Eastern texts, see §5.9):

12. “The Disappearance of the Sun God,” §3 (A I 11–17) (Harry A. Hoffner Jr., Hittite Myths [ed. Gary M. Beckman; WAW 2; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1990], 26).

Hoffner, Harry A., Jr. Hittite Myths. Edited by Gary M. Beckman. WAW 2. Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1990.

Authors are encouraged to provide the reader with the most current edition, particularly if a transliterated text is cited:

32. Ashur Inscription, obv. lines 10–17 (Albert Kirk Grayson, Assyrian Rulers of the Early First Millennium BC [1114–859 BC], RIMA 2 [Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1991], 143–44).

34. Ashur Inscription, obv. lines 10–17 (RIMA 2:143–44).

Grayson, Albert Kirk. Assyrian Rulers of the Early First Millennium BC (1114–859 BC). RIMA 2. Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1991.

33. Esarhaddon Chronicle, lines 3–4 (Albert Kirk Grayson, Assyrian and Babylonian Chronicles, TCS [Locust Valley, NY: Augustin, 1975], 125).

33. Esarhaddon Chronicle, lines 3–4 (ABC, 125).

Grayson, Albert Kirk. Assyrian and Babylonian Chronicles. TCS. Locust Valley, NY: Augustin, 1975.

Some texts, especially letters, are conventionally cited by their number in the principal edition, without a page reference; for example, a letter from the Mari archive sent by Yasmah-Adad is cited as:

45. ARM 1.3.

Dossin, Georges. Lettres. ARM 1. 1946. Repr., Paris: Geuthner, 1967.

If citing it from the edited version:

45. ARMT 1.3.

Georges Dossin, Correspondance de Šamši-Addu et de ses fils. ARMT 1. Paris: Imprimerie nationale, 1950.

6.4.2 Loeb Classical Library (Greek and Latin)

Citing a volume or work in the Loeb Classical Library, especially if the work is well known, requires only the primary reference. Ordinarily these are cited in parentheses, just as any other primary source. (See §6.1.3.6 on conventions for citing primary sources.)

(Josephus, Ant. 2.233–235)

1. Josephus, Ant. 2.233–235.

4. Tacitus, Ann. 15.18–19

As in the case of all ancient works, if the translation is being quoted, it is appropriate to cite the translator:

(Josephus, Ant. 2.233–235 [Thackeray, LCL])

5. Josephus, Ant. 2.233–235 (Thackeray, LCL).

6. Tacitus, Ann. 15.18–19 (Jackson, LCL).

The bibliography provides the necessary information regarding the work.

Josephus. Translated by Henry St. J. Thackeray et al. 10 vols. LCL. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1926–1965.

Tacitus. The Histories and The Annals. Translated by Clifford H. Moore and John Jackson. 4 vols. LCL. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1937.

If a complete work within an ancient author's corpus is under consideration, the entry can reflect that.

14. Flavius Josephus, The Jewish Antiquities, Books 1–19, trans. Henry St. J. Thackeray et al., LCL (Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1930–1965).

But the bibliography should reflect the entire collection.

- Josephus*. Translated by Henry St. J. Thackeray et al. 10 vols. LCL. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1926–1965.

6.4.3 Papyri, Ostraca, and Epigraphica

6.4.3.1 Papyri and Ostraca in General

When a papyrus or ostrakon, or a translation thereof, is cited from the standard critical edition listed in the most recent edition of the Checklist of Editions of Greek and Latin Papyri, Ostraca, and Tablets (ed. John F. Oates et al., 5th ed., BASPSup 9 [Oakville, CT: American Society of Papyrologists], 2001; more current is the online version at <http://scriptorium.lib.duke.edu/papyrus/texts/clist.html>), it is sufficient to cite by abbreviation (using the abbreviation from the Checklist; note that there are no spaces within the abbreviation) and inventory number.

(P.Cair.Zen. 59003)

22. P.Cair.Zen. 59003.

Bibliographic information for all collections so abbreviated should be included in a list of abbreviations or short titles. If a papyrus, or a translation thereof, is quoted from a source other than the principal edition (such as Hunt and Edgar's Select Papyri), the source should be identified in parentheses. In such cases, it is nevertheless preferable to use the standard abbreviation from the Checklist and include that abbreviation in the list of abbreviations or short titles.

22. P.Cair.Zen. 59003 (Arthur S. Hunt and Campbell C. Edgar, Select Papyri, LCL [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1932], 1:96).

If Select Papyri or a similar collection is cited frequently, it should be abbreviated. In the case of Select Papyri, citation may be by selection number rather than volume and page number.

22. P.Cair.Zen. 59003 (Hunt and Edgar §31).

6.4.3.2 Epigraphica

Taking their cue from Oates et al., Checklist of Editions (see §6.4.3.1), G. H. R. Horsley and John A. L. Lee offer "A Preliminary Checklist of Abbreviations of Greek Epigraphic Volumes" in Epigraphica: Periodico internazionale di epigrafia 56 (1994): 129–69. This indispensable checklist seeks "to provide a list of coherent abbreviations for Greek epigraphic volumes which are both acceptable to specialist epigraphers and comprehensible in themselves to nonspecialists who have occasion to use and refer to inscriptions” (p. 130). Abbreviations for a few of the more common epigraphic resources are included in §8.4 (e.g., BGU, MAMA, SIG), but for a more comprehensive catalogue, see Horsley and Lee’s checklist.

6.4.3.3 Greek Magical Papyri

The Greek Magical Papyri are abbreviated following Hans Dieter Betz, The Greek Magical Papyri in Translation, including the Demotic Spells, 2nd ed. (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1996). The roman numerals, even those with appended letters (e.g., PGM Va. 1–3), follow Preisendanz’s catalog of manuscripts. Betz retains Preisendanz’s Greek text numeration (until the end of Preisendanz’s list, LXXX), except he creates his own system (still dependent on PGM) for the demotic spells (which he identifies as PDM). N.B.: Spaces separate roman numerals and arabic numerals, which “usually delineate the compass of individual spells within the papyrus manuscript” (ibid., xxxi).

(PGM III. 1–164)

22. PGM III. 1–164.

If the edition should be mentioned, cite it in parentheses following the reference, listing it in full in the bibliography.

22. PGM III. 1–164 (Betz).

Betz, Hans Dieter. The Greek Magical Papyri in Translation, Including the Demotic Spells. 2nd ed. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1996.

6.4.4 Ancient Epistles and Homilies

The edition of the Cynic epistles edited by Abraham Malherbe (The Cynic Epistles: A Study Edition, SBS 12 [Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1977]) provides a convenient model for citation. Citing the Cynic epistles or the several ancient collections of letters, homilies, and the like can be confusing on two fronts since the writings frequently bear both titles and numbers but sometimes only a number. For example, the Epistles of Diogenes include Epistle 26: To Crates and a simple numeric designation, Epistle 28. Since all the epistles have numbers but not all have titles, the numbers serve as the best identifiers of the pieces and are considered sufficient citation. Line numbers should be included in specific quotations, with a comma separating the work from the line number.

(Heraclitus, Epistle 1, 10)

34. Heraclitus, Epistle 1, 10.

A comma separates the epistle number (set in italic) from the line number (set in roman). If the translation itself requires notation, include it in parentheses.

36. Heraclitus, Epistle 1, 10 (Worley).

Heraclitus. Epistle 1. Translated by David Worley. Page 187 in The Cynic Epistles: A Study Edition. Edited by Abraham J. Malherbe. SBS 12. Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1977.

If several authors from the collection are cited, put the full work in the bibliography:

Malherbe, Abraham J., ed. The Cynic Epistles: A Study Edition. SBS 12. Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1977.

6.4.5 ANF and NPNE, First and Second Series

Citing the church fathers can be confusing and frustrating since often there are a variety of levels at which one can cite. Authors may elect to cite both the primary reference and the volume and page number within a given series. If this does not become cumbersome for the reader, it is helpful to include both. In either case, it is better to use arabic numbers rather than roman numerals and to put the ANF or NPNE reference in parentheses. It is not necessary to give a full citation if a bibliography is included and subsequent citations in the notes are identical to the first citation.

14. The Clementine Homilies 1.3 (ANF 8:223).

In this example, the title of the work appears in italics. The number 1 indicates the homily number, and 3 designates the chapter. The parenthetical information refers to the series, volume, and page number. In the bibliography, one need cite only the series information, unless the translation itself plays an integral role in the discussion. Thus:

The Ante-Nicene Fathers. Edited by Alexander Roberts and James Donaldson. 1885–1887. 10 vols. Repr., Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1994.

An example in which the translation itself needs to be documented follows:

44. Augustine, Letters of St. Augustin 28.3.5 (NPNE¹ 1:252).

Augustine. The Letters of St. Augustin. In vol. 1 of The Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, Series 1. Edited by Philip Schaff. 1886–1889. 14 vols. Repr., Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1994.

6.4.6 J.-P. Migne's Patrologia Latina and Patrologia Graeca

For this series, use the abbreviated form:

6. Gregory of Nazianzus, Orationes theologicae 4 (PG 36:12c).

Patrologia Latina. Edited by J.-P. Migne. 217 vols. Paris, 1844–1864.

Patrologia Graeca. Edited by J.-P. Migne. 162 vols. Paris, 1857–1886.

6.4.7 Strack-Billerbeck, Kommentar zum Neuen Testament

Citing Hermann Strack and Paul Billerbeck's Kommentar zum Neuen Testament aus Talmud und Midrasch is simplified by using the abbreviation for the work, Str-B and the volume and page number(s). Thus a note might read:

3. See the discussion of ἐξαποῦντο in Str-B 2:271.

Strack, Hermann L., and Paul Billerbeck. Kommentar zum Neuen Testament aus Talmud und Midrasch. 6 vols. Munich: Beck, 1922–1961.

6.4.8 Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt (ANRW)

The multivolume Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt: Geschichte und Kultur Roms im Spiegel der neueren Forschung (ANRW) can be problematic because of the variety of levels, languages, and titles within this ongoing work. Articles appear in English, French, German, and Italian. Later volumes have the parallel English title Rise and Decline of the Roman World. Volumes of part 2, Principat, the material most commonly cited, have separate subtitles (e.g., Religion, Politische Geschichte, Sprache und Literatur, etc., with nearly thirty volumes in print). The note example below assumes that ANRW is listed properly in the bibliography and included in the list of abbreviations.

76. Graham Anderson, "The pepaideumenos in Action: Sophists and Their Outlook in the Early Empire," ANRW 33.1:80–208.

79. Anderson, "Pepaideumenos," ANRW 33.1:86.

Anderson, Graham. "The pepaideumenos in Action: Sophists and Their Outlook in the Early Empire." ANRW 33.1:80–208. Part 2, Principat, 33.1. Edited by H. Temporini and W. Haase. New York: de Gruyter, 1989.

As a strictly bibliographical entry, ANRW can be entered as follows.

Temporini, Hildegard, and Wolfgang Haase, eds. Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt: Geschichte und Kultur Roms im Spiegel der neueren Forschung. Part 2, Principat. Berlin: de Gruyter, 1972–.

6.4.9 Bible Commentaries

Properly citing Bible commentaries can be complex, especially when the commentaries are (1) multivolume or (2) in a series. Commentaries are normally cited just as any other book, with the commentary series name being the only significant addition. Since editors of commentary series usually acquire rather than edit, the names of general editors need not be included in bibliographic or note references. Thus:

8. Morna Hooker, The Gospel according to Saint Mark, BNTC 2 (Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1991), 223.

Hooker, Morna. The Gospel according to Saint Mark. BNTC 2. Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1991.

6.4.10 A Single Volume of a Multivolume Commentary in a Series

The style for citing a single volume of a multivolume commentary in a series is the same as for a titled volume in a multivolume edited work (§6.2.21). The style for citing the the entire work follows that for a multivolume work (§6.2.20).

6.4.11 SBL Seminar Papers

33. James L. Crenshaw, "Theodicy in the Book of the Twelve," Society of Biblical Literature 2001 Seminar Papers, SBLSPS 40 (Atlanta: Society of Biblical Literature, 2001), 1–18.

6.4.12 A CD-ROM Reference (with a Corresponding Print Edition)

Books on CD-ROM should be cited according to the print edition. It is not necessary to indicate the medium in the citation.

6.4.13 Text Editions Published Online with No Print Counterpart

When citing original editions of primary texts that are published online (as opposed to electronic versions of texts published previously in print form), an electronic resource identifier (DOI or URL) must be included.

2. Gernot Wilhelm, ed., "Der Vertrag Šuppiluliumas I. von Ḫatti mit Šattiwazza von Mittani (CTH 51.I)," released 24 February 2013, doi:hethiter.net/: CTH 51.I (INTR 2013-02-24).

6.4.14 Online Database

Citations of databases containing formally published materials should identify the author of the content or the owner or sponsor of the site, and provide the title of the content and the name of the database, followed by the electronic resource identifier(s).

37. Cobb Institute of Archaeology. "The Figurines of Maresha, the Persian Era," DigMaster, <http://www.cobb.msstate.edu/dignew/Maresha/index.html>.

6.4.15 Websites and Blogs

Material published informally online must nevertheless be included in notes and bibliography. (Blog entries, however, may be omitted from the bibliography.) In such citations, a URL alone is not sufficient. Rather, the material cited must be referred to by a descriptive phrase or title, followed by the author of the content if known, the owner or sponsor of the site, and the URL. SBL Press does not advocate including access dates (see §6.1.6).

10. "The One Hundred Most Important Cuneiform Objects," cdli:wiki, http://cdli.ox.ac.uk/wiki/doku.php?id=the_one_hundred_most_important_cuneiform_objects.

Per CMS §14.246, citations of blog entries should include the author of the entry; the name of the entry, in quotation marks; the title or description of the blog; the date; and a URL.

6.5 AUTHOR-DATE CITATIONS

Authors writing in the social sciences may elect to use an author-date form of citation rather than the more traditional note-based system described above. The primary purpose of author-date style is to eliminate cumbersome notes while still facilitating source references that do not interrupt the flow of the main text to a major degree. Because the style eliminates duplicate listings in notes and bibliography, it can save considerable space. If one chooses, it can even be combined with strictly substantive notes to produce a clear and "streamlined" overall appearance.

In the author-date system, a reference list (often called "Works Cited") provides complete publication information on all the sources, and only the sources, referred to in the text; “select bibliographies” have no place here. As the style name implies, the source list is arranged according to each work’s author(s) and date of publication, thus producing an author-date sequence that is used, along with page numbers, in text citations.

A bibliographical listing in the author-date reference list differs from the traditional system in several key ways: the date of publication follows the author’s name rather than falling at the end of the citation, and multiple works by the same author are organized by publication date (oldest to most recent) rather than alphabetically by title of the work.

For a wealth of additional information, consult CMS §§15.1–55. Examples:

An elaborate treatment can be found in Talbert 1992, 51.

Pfuhl (1980, 65–68) notes five possible techniques.

Two citations in the same sentence:

An agrarian society is built upon agricultural production (Lenski and Lenski 1974, 207; Lenski 1966, 192).

When an author has more than one work in the bibliography, the entries should follow this order: (1) works authored, edited, or translated by author in chronological order from the oldest to the most recent; (2) works compiled, edited, or translated by that author and another. Thus, for books by the same author:

Wilder, Amos. 1939. Eschatology and Ethics in the Teaching of Jesus. New York: Harper & Bros.

———. 1971. Early Christian Rhetoric: The Language of the Gospel. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

When an author has two or more works in the same year, the entries should be arranged in alphabetical order and designated “a,” “b,” etc.

(Pilch 1988a, 14)

(Pilch 1988b, 60)

———. 1988b. “Understanding Biblical Healing: Selecting the Appropriate Model.” BTB 18:60–66.

When multiple works by an author are cited together, they are separated by a semicolon when they include page references and by a comma in the absence of page references.

7.1 TYPES OF INDEXES

The author or editor of a volume is usually responsible for creating any indexes to be included. Authors and editors should consult with the publisher regarding the types of indexes to be included, as this will vary depending on the type of book.

At a minimum, most monographs and many multiauthor volumes will include a subject index. In biblical studies and related fields it is also a desideratum to include an ancient sources index. Some works may benefit from an author index as well.

7.1.1 Subject Index

The primary requisite of a subject index is usefulness to the reader. Entry headings should be concise and logical. In deciding what topics to include, the indexer must try to anticipate names or terms that readers are likely to look for as well as when they might look for them under an alternative term. It is not necessary to index names or terms that occur in passing and are not essential to the theme of the work.

7.1.1.1 Main Headings

As a rule, use nouns and noun phrases, rather than adjectives, for the main headings of a subject index (e.g., holiness rather than holy). A comprehensive subject index will often include proper nouns designating people and places as well as common nouns identifying objects and ideas. If a reader is likely to search by the second word in a noun phrase, invert the two words (e.g., coherence, literary). See CMS §16.9.

7.1.1.2 Subentries

Overly broad entries that list eight or more page numbers may frustrate readers searching for a specific passage. To prevent this, supply helpful subheadings detailing the various parts or aspects of a main entry. In some cases a subheading combines with the main entry to identify a narrower subject (e.g., feminist and criticism in §7.1.1.6); in others the subheading identifies a specific division within the main entry. If both kinds will assist readers, both should be used. See CMS §16.10.

7.1.1.3 Locators

To help readers locate passages quickly and accurately, an index should provide specific and clear locators, such as page numbers, paragraph or section numbers, note numbers, or text and line numbers. When a subject is discussed over multiple pages or sections, specify the beginning and ending pages (e.g., 34–36); if a subject is merely mentioned on a series of pages, list them separately (e.g., 34, 35, 36). See CMS §16.13.

7.1.1.4 Cross-References

Cross-references serve two purposes. See references guide readers from possible index terms to the terms actually used in the index (e.g., treaty. See covenant). See also cross-references direct readers to related topics that they may want to consider. Note that both See and See also are set in italics, and the latter generally appears after all the locators. For more on cross-references, see CMS §§16.15–23.

7.1.1.5 Capitalization of Index Entries

Capitalize only those index entries that would be capitalized in the middle of a sentence. See CMS §16.11.

7.1.1.6 Sample Subject Index

7.1.2 Ancient Sources Index

Ancient sources indexes are essential tools in biblical studies and related fields. Thus, most scholarly works will include such an index, while works designed for a more general audience may omit it. It is helpful to boldface primary discussions of texts to aid the reader in navigating through the work.

7.1.2.1 Sorting Primary-Text References

Please pay particular attention to the following model regarding the ordering of references within indexes of primary-text references. Some general principles can be observed in the examples below: (1) When two ranges have the same starting point, the one with the earlier end point is listed first. (2) A simple reference (to a chapter, a verse, or part of a verse, rather than a range) precedes a range whose starting point is the same as the simple reference. (3) We strongly discourage the use of a reference to a range with no explicitly named end point (i.e., a reference using f. or ff.); but if used such a reference would follow any simple references and precede any references to ranges whose end points are explicitly given. (4) A reference to a specified portion of a verse (or a range beginning therewith) comes after a reference to the whole verse (or a range beginning therewith).

	2:4–7	2:4b–7

7.1.2.2 Common Subdivisions of an Ancient Sources Index

Common subdivisions of an ancient sources index include the following, in order:

- Hebrew Bible [if Hebrew Bible order is followed; otherwise, use “Old Testament”]
- Ancient Near Eastern Texts
- Deuterocanonical Books [preferred to “Apocryphal Books”]
- Pseudepigrapha
- Dead Sea Scrolls
- Ancient Jewish Writers [e.g., Josephus and Philo]
- New Testament
- Rabbinic Works [or individually, in the following order: Mishnah; Tosefta; Talmuds; Targums; Midrash and Related Literature]
- Early Christian Writings
- Greco-Roman Literature

7.1.3 Author Index

If an author and publisher determine that an author index will be of value to the reader, then one may be included. Author indexes may be included whether the book utilizes the traditional documentation style of citation or the author-date system (for which see §6). Unlike with the subject index and the ancient sources index, it is not necessary to specify when an author name appears in the footnotes; the page number alone is sufficient.

7.1.3.1 General

Only primary author(s) should be indexed. Do not index editors of a volume in which an essay appears unless the citation is to the edited work as a whole. Do not include note numbers when providing page listings; the page itself is sufficient.

7.1.3.2 Sample Author Index

Boadt, Lawrence, 67, 69
Brenner, Athalya, 73, 123, 156, 158
Carr, David M., 132, 166
Fitzmyer, Joseph A., 20
Fokkelman, Jan P., 20, 65
García Bachmann, Mercedes L., 101, 102

7.2 ALPHABETIZING

The rules provided in this section apply equally to bibliographies.

7.2.1 General

The two main systems of alphabetizing are generally called letter-by-letter and word-by-word (for a full discussion of the two, see CMS §16.58–61). For those who are accustomed to the terminology, we use the word-by-word rule. A simple way of explaining this rule is: proceed character by character, giving priority to word-units. Letters, obviously enough, will go in alphabetical order: a ranks highest; z lowest; case and diacritics are ignored (o = ö = ø). Commas and spaces signal an interruption, and the material that follows is considered only in alphabetizing entries with an identical first word. (This is similar to the numerical system used in this handbook; each set of digits separated by a period constitutes a “word,” and one takes into account only as many “digit-words” as are common to the numbers being sequenced.) If the same word is followed by a comma and by a space in two entries, the word with the comma is listed first (e.g., New, Zoe before New Deal). Hyphens, capital letters, and quotation marks are ignored. An apostrophe used in transliteration ranks before an a, but in names it is often ignored (see §§7.2.2.2–3). The following list gives a fuller hierarchy:

space]	Signals a break in alphabetizing
' [apostrophe]
0
1
(etc.)
9 a, A, ä, á, å (etc.)
b (etc.)
z
Ignored: - – . “ ” ‘ ’	[hyphen, en dash, period, double and single quotation marks]

Thus, to borrow and modify the CMS §16.61 word-by-word example:

N stem	newel
NEW (Now End War)	“new-fangled notions”
New, Arthur	newlyweds
New, Zoe	news, lamentable
New Deal	News, Networks, and the Arts
new economics	news conference
New England	News of the World
New Latin	news release
new math	newsletter
New Testament	newsprint
New Word	newt
New Year’s Day	Newton, Lady Anne
new years and old habits	Newton, Isaac newborn	Newton, Rev. Philip T.
newcomer	Newtonian

7.2.2 Names with Particles and Titles

For surnames that begin with particles (i.e., prepositions and articles) we follow two general rules: (1) capitalize according to established usage; (2) alphabetize by the first capitalized part of the surname.

We do not conform Jewish and Arabic names with ben and ibn to the rules for particles because ben and ibn are not particles but nouns (meaning “son [of]”). Abraham ibn Ezra should be alphabetized as Ibn Ezra, Abraham. Moses ben Maimon would be alphabetized as Ben Maimon, Moses (or as Maimonides).

Since titles (such as “Lady” and “Rev.” in the sample list of §7.2.1) can easily displace an author’s name from its natural location, you may consider omitting the titles altogether or putting them in parentheses and ignoring them in alphabetizing. Such decisions will involve editorial judgment about the most recognizable form of a name and the form in which readers are most likely to search for it.

7.2.2.1 Capitalization

It is not always easy to know what constitutes established usage, since different rules apply to different particles in names of different nationalities; for example, names that have been Americanized are generally capitalized without regard to such rules. The table in §7.2.2.3 gives our usage for some names that occur commonly in biblical scholarship and related fields. Others may be treated by analogy with these (but be careful to follow the right model for the nationality at hand) or looked up in a standard reference work such as Merriam-Webster's Biographical Dictionary. If no print authority is available, consult WorldCat (<http://WorldCat.org>) or the Library of Congress (<http://catalog.loc.gov>).

A particle in a given person's name should have the same case in running text, footnotes, bibliographies, and indexes whether or not the surname is preceded by a first name or initials. Thus:

- In his earlier works, Gerhard von Rad said . . .
- In his earlier works, von Rad said . . .
- In his earlier works, François Du Bois said . . .
- In his earlier works, Du Bois said . . .

Any name with a particle at the beginning of a sentence is capitalized:

- Von Rad often said . . .

7.2.2.2 Alphabetization

John Van Seters should be alphabetized as Van Seters, John, because in this Americanized name Van is capitalized; Hans von Campenhausen should be alphabetized as Campenhausen, Hans von, because von is not capitalized. Follow this same rule even when a noncapitalized particle is separated from the main part of the surname by an apostrophe or hyphen rather than a space (as with Jean Le Rond d'Alembert and Khalid Ahmad al-'Adami in the following table).

For names beginning with M, Mc, Mac, or O, as well as names beginning with St., Saint, Saint-, Sainte, and the like, follow the general rule given above in §7.2.1. These names should be “sorted as they appear,” not “sorted as if spelled out”; for this purpose, the apostrophes are ignored (see CMS §16.73–75). Remember that spaces are significant in sorting.

It is important to anticipate occasions when readers may not look up a particular name in the “right” place. In indexes containing only a few names with particles, judicious use of cross-references and even double entries is encouraged.

7.2.2.3 Examples

The following list is a guide for capitalization as well as alphabetization. Some names without particles have been included to demonstrate correct alphabetization.

7.2.3 Compound Surnames

Most Spanish authors and some English-speaking authors use double surnames, which should be alphabetized according to the first element. It is often impossible to tell just from looking at such names how they should be treated, so authors and editors are encouraged to make use of WorldCat. With English-speaking authors, the absence of a hyphen does not necessarily mean that the two family names do not make a double surname—although it usually does. As for names with particles, we look to the Library of Congress for definitive guidance in individual cases. A few examples:

Alonso Schökel, Luis
Busto Saiz, José Ramon
Díez Macho, Alejandro
García Cordero, M.
García de la Fuente, Olegario
Fernández-Armesto, Felipe
Lane Fox, Robin
Payne Smith, Robert

Ruiz Bueno, Daniel
Santos Otero, Aurelio de
Schüssler Fiorenza, Elisabeth
Teilhard de Chardin, Pierre Yarbro Collins, Adela
but:

Jones, Henry Stuart

As in the case of names with particles (see §7.2.2.2), appropriate use of cross-references is encouraged.

 - 8.4.2 Alphabetized by Abbreviation

Authors' use of abbreviations will vary depending on the material and its intended readers. Abbreviations can be particularly useful in notes, parenthetical materials, tables, lists, and bibliographies, and in the right circumstances SBL Press encourages authors to make the most of them. Where abbreviations are frequent, it is helpful to list the uncommon ones (those that would not be found in a standard dictionary or universally known among the target audience) in the front matter; on the other hand, if technical abbreviations are infrequent, one could make a good case for eliminating them entirely.

In running text, it is much more common to spell terms out, but even there abbreviations can be used to advantage. Thus Old and New Testament books (particularly where specific passages are being cited), the different versions of the Scripture, conventional journal and dictionary titles, and numerous other common terms may be readily abbreviated—provided the audience is unlikely to be confused. If the term to be abbreviated appears at the beginning of a sentence, it should ordinarily be spelled out.

The following pages present abbreviations that are widely used in the pertinent academic disciplines. We acknowledge that many inconsistencies exist, both as a result of developments (sometimes reflected in major publications) in relatively independent and specialized fields and as a function of normal variations in English usage. Thus ours is not an attempt to prescribe inviolable rules but rather to provide an accessible reference for authors and to document SBL Press’s own usage. Naturally, if our suggestions help bring about a greater consistency across the fields represented, we will not be unhappy; even though no one will love every abbreviation, their common use can have overriding benefits. Still, we wish to be quite clear that authors and publishers may freely choose to vary from the usages we describe, provided they appropriately document their chosen abbreviations for readers.

8.1 GENERAL ABBREVIATIONS

8.1.1 Postal Abbreviations

The names of states or other geographic entities should not be abbreviated in the body of a work when they stand alone, unless they occur in parentheses. SBL Press now prefers to use the two-letter postal codes over the traditional abbreviations (e.g., MA instead of Mass., CA instead of Calif., ON instead of Ont.) for US states and Canadian provinces. Authors should ascertain their publisher’s preference and use one system or the other consistently.

8.1.2 Eras

SBL style uses all caps without periods (see also CMS §§9.35, 10.39) in abbreviations of chronological eras. If you use AD and BC, remember that AD precedes the date (e.g., AD 325) and BC follows the date (e.g., 127 BC). For the use of these abbreviations in titles, see §6.1.3.2.

AD	anno Domini (in the year of our Lord) [precedes date]
AH	anno Hegirae (in the year of [Muhammad's] Hegira [622 CE]) [precedes date]

The above list is selective and is admittedly more descriptive than prescriptive. Thus it includes several abbreviations whose use we strongly discourage. The abbreviations f. and ff. (for references to ranges with no explicitly named end point) should be replaced by an exact range. Instead of using op. cit. and loc. cit. for note citations, an abbreviated citation (author's last name and a short title) is preferred.

8.2 BIBLE TEXTS AND VERSIONS

Books of the Bible cited without chapter (or chapter and verse) should ordinarily be spelled out in the main text. Books of the Bible cited with chapter are more commonly abbreviated unless they come at the beginning of the sentence. Authors citing more than one translation of the Bible must indicate which translation is used in a particular citation. When this citation is in parentheses, a comma is not needed between the reference and the abbreviation of the translation, as is indicated in the fourth example below.

Right:	The passage in 1 Cor 5 is often considered crucial. The passage, 1 Cor 5:6, is often considered crucial. First Corinthians 5:6 is a crucial text. “Do you not know that a little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough?” (1 Cor 5:6 NRSV).
Wrong:	1 Cor 5:6 is a crucial text. 1 Corinthians 5:6 is a crucial text.

8.2.1 Divisions, Units, Texts, and Versions

In addition to the abbreviations for biblical books given below in §§8.3.1–3, the following abbreviations should be used:

To specify that a reference is to a particular ancient version or modern translation, follow the format described for the Septuagint in §8.3.3, but substitute the appropriate version abbreviation for LXX.

8.2.2 Citations of Parallel Texts

In gospel research, and in some other areas, it is often useful to point readers to parallel texts. To refer to a parallel without citing chapter and verse, use the abbreviation par. (whose plural, like vv. for verses, is parr.). To cite specific texts, use twin slashes, set closely together (//), between the cited passages. Thus:

Matt 11:2–6 par. means Matt 11:2–6 and an unspecified parallel text. Or more fully:
 Matt 11:2–6 // Luke 7:18–23

Mark 6:32–44; 8:1–10; and parr.
 Gos. Thom. 26 // Q 6:41–42 (Luke 6:41–42, Matt 7:3–5)

8.3 PRIMARY SOURCES: ANCIENT TEXTS

Abbreviations for the Hebrew Bible/Old Testament, New Testament, deuterocanonical works, and Dead Sea Scrolls and related texts do not use a period. All other abbreviations are marked by periods.

Patterns of punctuation around numbers in text references vary as noted below. In general, we prefer to separate chapter and verse references such as one finds in biblical materials with colons (see §8.3.1). With other ancient texts, where numbering may be by book, chapter, section, paragraph, or line, periods have become more common for separating the successive unit numbers. In some cases, by discipline-specific convention, other patterns may be used.

8.3.1 Hebrew Bible/Old Testament

In biblical references, a colon normally separates chapters and verses, a comma and a letter space separate verse designations within a chapter, and a semicolon followed by a letter space separates references to different chapters (or chapters and verses). Thus: Isa 1:8; 5:1–7, 10; Jer 2:21 (see further §4.1.8).

8.3.3 Deuterocanonical Works and Septuagint

For abbreviations of LXX books that appear in the Hebrew Bible under different names, see §8.3.1. Add “LXX” to Hebrew Bible/Old Testament citations explicitly from the Septuagint; thus, 3 Kgdms 2:46h LXX (or 1 Kgs 2:46h LXX); Jer 28:1–4 LXX; Ps 80:8 (80:9 LXX). Otherwise, chapters and verses are cited as described in §8.3.1.

Tob	Tobit	Sus	Susanna
Jdt	Judith	Bel	Bel and the Dragon
Add Esth	Additions to Esther	1–2 Macc	1–2 Maccabees
Wis	Wisdom of Solomon	1 Esd	1 Esdras
Sir	Sirach/Ecclesiasticus	Pr Man	Prayer of Manasseh
Bar	Baruch	Ps 151	Psalms 151
Ep Jer	Epistle of Jeremiah	3 Macc	3 Maccabees
Add Dan	Additions to Daniel	2 Esd	2 Esdras
Pr Azar	Prayer of Azariah	4 Macc	4 Maccabees
Sg Three	Song of the Three Young Men

8.3.4 Old Testament Pseudepigrapha

The names of authors whose works survive only in a small number of fragments should not normally be abbreviated. Abbreviations for them are included in this list (in roman type) mainly for the benefit of editors who may need to expand them.

8.3.5 Dead Sea Scrolls and Related Texts

Certain conventions are used to cite texts from Qumran and the surrounding area. The name of the site is given, abbreviated according to the list below.

Q	Qumran
Ḥev	Naḥal Ḥever
Ḥev/Se	Used for documents earlier attributed to Seiyal
Mas	Masada
Mird	Khirbet Mird
Mur	Murabbaʿat

The different caves at each site are denoted with sequential numbers, for example, 1Q, 2Q, and so on. Different copies of the same composition from the same cave are indicated by the use of raised lowercase letters, for example, 1QIsa^a, 1QIsa^b.

There is considerable diversity in nomenclature in actual use for individual documents. In most cases, it is helpful to give the number of the document to avoid confusion. In addition to the number, the descriptive name should be given in the initial citation to permit ease of identification. The number of the text should not be put in italics or bold type, for example, 4Q520 or Mur 16.

The first seven scrolls removed from Cave 1, as well as the Cairo Genizah copy of the Damascus Document, are referred to customarily by name (not by number). The standard names and abbreviations are as follows:

1QapGen ar	Genesis Apocryphon
1QH ^a	Hodayot ^a or Thanksgiving Hymns ^a
1QIsa ^a	Isaiah ^a
1QIsa ^b	Isaiah ^b
1QM	Millhamah or War Scroll
1QpHab	Pesher Habakkuk
1QS	Serek Hayahad or Rule of the Community
CD	Cairo Genizah copy of the Damascus Document

Common abbreviations for the classification of the scrolls are as follows:

apocr	apocryphon (e.g., 1QapGen)
ar	Aramaic (e.g., 4QMess ar)
gr	Greek (e.g., 4QpapParaExod gr)
hebr	Hebrew (e.g., 4QTob ^c hebr)
p	pesher (e.g., 1QpHab)
paleo	Paleo-Hebrew (e.g., 11QpaleoLev)
pap	papyrus (e.g., 4QpapParaExod gr)
tg	targum (e.g., 11QtgJob)

When a manuscript is referred to by column and line number, roman numerals are used for the column number, followed by a comma and space, with the line number set as an arabic numeral (e.g., 1QS III, 12; 1QpHab I, 2). Manuscripts of biblical texts can include the biblical citation of chapter and verse in parentheses: 4QpaleoExod^m V, 4 (9:7).

When several fragments are numbered separately within a work, the fragments should be in arabic numerals. Thus, 1Q27 1 II, 25 means text 27 from Qumran Cave 1, fragment 1, column II, line 25; 4QpIsa^c 4–7 II, 2–4 means the third copy (copy c) of a pesher on Isaiah from Qumran Cave 4, joined fragments 4 to 7, column II, lines 2 to 4. Fragments are sometimes identified by uppercase letters (e.g., 11Q1 A [Lev 4:24–26]). (While some scholars use lowercase column numbers, with or without the comma [e.g., 1Q27 1 ii, 25 or 1Q27 1 ii 25], the above conventions are recommended for the sake of simplicity.)

Some frequently cited texts, examples from various categories, and texts whose names have been changed since first publication are given below:

NUMBER	ABBREVIATION	NAME (AND ALTERNATIVE NAMES)
1Q28a	1QSa	Rule of the Congregation (appendix a to 1QS)

8.3.7 Josephus

On whether to cite Latin or English titles and abbreviations, see §8.3.6. Authors may follow the numbering scheme appropriate to their audience, utilizing the book and small-unit numbering scheme of Niese’s edition (retained in the margin and running heads of the Loeb volumes; see §6.4.2); the book, chapter, and paragraph numbering of older editions (including the Whiston translation ubiquitously used by general readers, though some recent reprints now also include the Niese numbers); or a combination of the two. Thus, for example, if one needed to reference Josephus’s little geographical excursus on the Lake of Gennesareth, the fertility of the region, and the course of the Jordan, one might use any of the following formats:

Josephus, J.W. 3.506–521
 Josephus, J.W. 3.10.7–8
 Josephus, J.W. 3.10.7–8 §§506–521

Of course, one could cite the abbreviation B.J. instead of J.W. For the record, SBL Press uses the third option above. Note that whereas some printed versions number the paragraphs III.x.7–8, SBL Press encourages exclusive use of arabic numbers (see §4.2.2). With all these options, we stress the importance of consistency: as always, pick a style and stick with it throughout your book or essay.

Vita	Vita	A.J.	Antiquitates judaicae
Life	The Life	Ant.	Jewish Antiquities
C. Ap.	Contra Apionem	B.J.	Bellum judaicum
Ag. Ap.	Against Apion	J.W.	Jewish War

8.3.8 Mishnah, Talmud, and Related Literature

Abbreviations distinguish the versions of the talmudic tractates: y. for Jerusalem and b. for Babylonian. A prefixed t. denotes the tractates of the Tosefta and an m. those of the Mishnah. A prefixed bar. denotes a baraita (an authoritative Tannaitic rule external to the Mishnah). When citing the Mishnah, a colon separates the chapter from the paragraph (i.e., mishnah); thus, m. Ber. 1:1. The standard way to cite the Babylonian Talmud is by folio and side (a or b); thus, b. Ber. 2a. The Jerusalem Talmud combines elements of both styles, beginning with a chapter and paragraph reference and ending with reference to the folio and column (a–d); thus, y. B. Bat. 10:1, 17c. A colon separates chapter and paragraph (as with Mishnah references), followed by a comma and space, then the folio and column designation. Successive references are separated by semicolons. (Another common format is y. B. Bat. 10.1, 17c; if one uses it, consistency requires substituting a period for the colon in Mishnah references as well.)

The third column in the following list contains nontechnical transliterations following the general-purpose Hebrew transliteration style (§5.1.2).

8.3.11 Apostolic Fathers

Recent scholarship appears quite divided over whether to cite these texts like biblical materials (by chapter and verse, with an intervening colon) or like later Christian writings (using a period between successive units). The numbering system for most of the writings is so simple (and the place some of them had in the early church was so close to that held by some of the canonical NT writings) that the tendency toward use of a colon is understandable. Complicating the picture slightly is the fact that two numbering systems are sometimes used for the Shepherd of Hermas. For all the Apostolic Fathers, we recommend a consistent use of periods rather than commas, and for the Shepherd we recommend composite references such as Herm. Vis. 4.1.4 (22.4). For a more complete explanation of citing the Shepherd, see appendix D.

Barn.	Barnabas
1–2 Clem.	1–2 Clement
Did.	Didache
Diogn.	Diognetus
Herm. Mand.	Shepherd of Hermas, Mandate(s)
Herm. Sim.	Shepherd of Hermas, Similitude(s)

Ign. Rom.	Ignatius, To the Romans
Ign. Smyrn.	Ignatius, To the Smyrnaeans
Ign. Trall.	Ignatius, To the Trallians
Mart. Pol.	Martyrdom of Polycarp
Pol. Phil.	Polycarp, To the Philippians

8.3.12 Coptic Codices

8.3.12.1 Nag Hammadi

The names of individual treatises listed below follow the new standard translation The Nag Hammadi Scriptures: The International Edition, edited by Marvin Meyer (New York: HarperOne, 2007), 799–802.

Nag Hammadi codices (= NHC) are identified in the following list by the codex number (a roman numeral) and the tractate number (an arabic numeral). Specific text references designate the page and line numbering of the tractates, except that in the case of the Gospel of Thomas it is more common to use the saying number. By convention, page and line numbers are separated from each other by a period. Thus one might refer to Gos. Truth (NHC I 32.31–33.32) to designate page 32 line 31 through page 33 line 32 of the full “gospel” text as it stands in Nag Hammadi codex I (there is a fragmentary text in codex XII).

8.3.14 Classical and Ancient Christian Writings

When citing a particular work only once, spell it out rather than abbreviate it, especially if many readers might not be familiar with the work in question. If the same work is cited many times, or if many different works are cited, use abbreviations within notes or parentheses to avoid cluttering the book with spelled-out titles.

We have consulted a number of standard references: the various Oxford Greek and Latin lexicons and dictionaries, the Dictionnaire latin-français des auteurs chrétiens (Turnhout: Brepols, 1967), the TLG Canon (New York: Oxford University Press, 1990 [for titles; does not give abbreviations]), and others. We do not, however, follow any of these without exception for several reasons: none of them covers the whole field of ancient and late antique, Greek and Latin, Christian and non-Christian writers; most of them are inconsistent internally and with other complementary works; and most of them abbreviate at least some works too concisely for readers not specializing in classical studies or patristics.

We therefore provide not only the table below but also a set of rules. If the work you need to abbreviate is not in the table, similar titles may be; and if not, you can use the rules to devise an acceptable abbreviation of your own.

8.3.14.1 Rules for Abbreviating Latin Titles

- (1) Abbreviate titles of works but not names of authors (except as in rule 12 below).

- (2) Latin and Greek titles are capitalized according to the rules for Latin (see §6.1.3.8).
- (3) The first letter of an abbreviation is always uppercase; otherwise, case in the abbreviation follows case in the spelled-out title.
- (4) With regard to Latin orthography: we prefer v and j for consonantal u and i.
- (5) Avoid acronyms. (In a monograph on Eusebius, the author may elect to use HE rather than Hist. eccl., but otherwise Hist. eccl. is more helpful to readers.) Do not use acronym-abbreviation hybrids such as DMort. or JTr. Do not abbreviate by omitting vowels, as in Phdr. for Phaedrus. (An exception would be a standard biblical abbreviation, such as Phlm for Philemon [see §§8.3.2 and 8.3.15].)
- (6) Rather, abbreviate words by truncating them and placing a period at the point of truncation. Don't truncate between consonants; truncate after a consonant rather than after a vowel where possible. The abbreviation should normally contain at least a whole syllable. Thus: use Phaedr. rather than Phaed. for Phaedrus, Socr. rather than Soc. for Socrates, coll. rather than col. for collatio, parad. rather than para. for paradoxa, and Thras. rather than Thr. for Thrasonidis.
- (7) Do not double a final consonant in an abbreviation to indicate a plural; for example, use Can. ap. not Cann. app. for a reference in Canones apostolicae.
- (8) For Latin titles that begin with prepositions (De, In, Contra, Adversus, Pro, Ad), the abbreviation includes the preposition (or its abbreviation) only if one of the following holds: (1) The work is a commentary, homily, and the like whose title consists of In plus the name of the primary text. (2) The preposition is followed by a noun too short to be abbreviated, so that omitting the preposition would result in an abbreviation beginning with a noun in a case other than the nominative. (3) Without the preposition, this work could be confused with another whose name is similarly abbreviated, as with the orations of Demosthenes for and against Phormio. Similarly, prepositions within a title are omitted in the absence of like complications: Enarrationes in Psalmos is abbreviated Enarrat. Ps., not Enarrat. in Ps. (See rule 12 below.) Note that in the table we take into account initial prepositions in alphabetizing the abbreviations.
- (9) Like prepositions, et is omitted from abbreviations.
- (10) When a single author has several numbered works by the same name, we prefer in the abbreviation to place the numeral before the name and italicize it. This keeps the treatise number from being confused with a section, chapter, or paragraph number and is consistent with the usage for numbered biblical books. On the other hand, sometimes such works are commonly treated as books of a unified opus, in which case the number follows the name, is set roman, and is followed immediately by a period and a section number.
- (11) Where different authors have works with the same title, use the same abbreviation for each author; where the same word occurs in different titles, try to use the same abbreviation for the same word. Here is a list of words that occur commonly in titles and their abbreviations:

adv.	adversus	ap.	apostolicus
an.	anima; analytica; animal, animalia	apol.	apologia
anth.	anthologia	Apoll.	Apollo, Apollonius, etc.
		Arian.	Arianus

bell.	bellum	metam.	metamorphoses
catech.	catechesis	metaph.	metaphysica
c.	contra	mete.	meteorologica
comm.	commentarius, commentarium, commentariolum	od.	odae
cor.	corona	or.	orator, oratoria, oratio
d.	deus	orac.	oraculum
Did. apost.	Didascalia apostolorum	orig.	origo, originalis
eccl.	ecclesiasticus	Orig.	Origen
enarrat.	enarratio	pr.	prior
ep.	epistula	pol.	politicus, politeia
epigr.	epigrammata	post.	posterior
eth.	ethica	quaest.	quaestiones
ev.	evangelium, evangelicus	res.	resurrectio
Ev.	Evangelium	rhet.	rhetor, rhetorica
exc.	excerpta	sat.	satirae, saturae
exp.	expositio	schol.	scholia
expl.	explanatio	sel.	selecta
fr.	fragmentum, fragmenta	spir.	spiritus
hist.	historia	tract.	tractatus
hom.	homilia	virg.	virgo, virgines
hymn.	hymnus	virginit.	virginitas
int.	interpretatio	vit.	vita

- (12) Similarly, where the title of one work (e.g., a biblical book or a treatise of Aristotle) occurs in the title of another (such as a commentary or a translation), the abbreviation for the primary work should be incorporated (and capitalized) in the abbreviation of the secondary work. The abbreviation for the secondary work is not simply identical to the abbreviation for the primary work. Rather, if it is a translation, it should begin with an abbreviation for the name of the original author (for examples, see under Rufinus and Jerome for their translations of Origen; this is the only circumstance in which we abbreviate authors' names); if the secondary work is a commentary of some kind, its abbreviation should begin with Comm., Enarrat., Hom., Tract., or the like, or at least with In.

8.3.14.2 Citing Numbered Passages

The manner in which one cites numbered passages will depend to some degree upon the text one is referencing. In general, we recommend citing the numbering that is original to the work first, followed if appropriate by any secondary numerical identification supplied by the standard critical edition (or by another edition whose numbering is widely followed). In many cases, the secondary numbers will designate pages, but in other cases (see, e.g., §8.3.7 on Josephus) it will represent a more precise—but equally artificial—reference system. (If the secondary reference system is not almost universally recognizable, its source should be indicated by either an annotated bibliographical entry or an explanation in the list of abbreviations.) Since the numbering of a critical edition is usually the most helpful in identifying the precise passage one wants to cite, it is tempting to reference this number alone. We prefer the composite form described above because it helps readers who do not have access to the same edition or translation used by the author; they may still be able to find the passage in their own edition or translation. We prefer to separate book, chapter, and section numbers by periods, place references to particular critical editions in parentheses, and divide successive references with semicolons. As indicated elsewhere, we encourage use of arabic numbers, even in cases where the cited text uses roman numerals.

Examples:

Plutarch, Is. Os. 46 (369E) designates the paragraph from Isis and Osiris along with the page number used since the 1572 Stephanus edition of Plutarch's Moralia.

Plato, Resp. 5.4 (454D)

Clement of Alexandria, Strom. 2.10 (46.1)

Diogenes Laertius, Lives 7.1 Zeno (89)

Quintilian, Inst. 1.10.22

8.3.14.3 Greek and Latin Works and Their Abbreviations

Explanatory notes regarding the table:

- (1) For Greek works as for Latin works, a Latin title and abbreviation are normally used; but if the work is well known under its Greek name, this may be provided in parentheses following the Latin title. In a few cases where scholars almost always use a Greek title instead, we give a Greek abbreviation and a Greek title, both transliterated. We do not use Greek abbreviations in Greek characters.
- (2) For many better-known works, English as well as Latin titles are given. For Greek and Latin classical and patristic works, however, we prefer to use Latin abbreviations in notes even if English titles are used in the text of the book. If English abbreviations are used, the author should provide a list of these.
- (3) Most of the works in this table are traditionally cited by author and title, the latter of which is presented in italics. Works traditionally cited by title alone (no author attribution) are presented in roman, following the same principle operative in §4.3.3.1 of italicizing the title of a work only if that work is typically cited by author and title. In the table below, works cited by title alone are alphabetized by their abbreviations, which are given in bold to distinguish them from works of the preceding author. Naturally, when such an abbreviation is used it should be set roman but not bold.
- (4) Abbreviations of spurious works are bracketed.
- (5) For the sake of completeness, some titles are included that are short enough that they need no abbreviation.
- (6) The table is very selective in its choice of authors, but for authors that are included we have tried to offer complete lists of their works.

8.3.15 Latin Names of Biblical Books

The following table provides abbreviations for the Latin names of biblical books. For the benefit of those not familiar with the Latin Bible, the English name of each book is also given. These abbreviations for the Latin names of the books of the Bible follow the Dictionnaire latin-français des auteurs chrétiens (Turnhout: Brepols, 1967) except as modified according to the following hierarchy of rules: (1) unabbreviated forms are used only for short, uninflected forms; (2) where possible, these Latin abbreviations conform to the abbreviations given below for the English book names, except that the Latin abbreviations are italicized and followed by a period; (3) otherwise, these Latin abbreviations conform to the rules given above. For numbered books, the abbreviation should use arabic numbers set italic; for example, a patristic commentary on 1 Chronicles, if such had been written, might be titled Commentarii in primum Paralipomenorum librum and abbreviated *Comm. 1 Par.*¹

	LATIN TITLE	ENGLISH TITLE
	Vetus Testamentum	Old Testament
Abd.	Abdias	Obadiah

Lam.	Lamentationes	Lamentations
Lev.	Leviticus	Leviticus
Macc.	Macchabaei	Maccabees

¹ Some writers use inflected forms of Hebrew names that other writers leave uninflected. When inflected names are used, abbreviated forms must have a period. For example, Commentarius in Joel would be abbreviated Comm. Joel (no period after Joel); but Commentarius in Joelem is abbreviated Comm. Joel., since in this case an accusative ending is being dropped.

8.3.16 Papyri, Ostraca, and Epigraphical Citations

The standard resource for abbreviating Greek papyri, ostraca, and tablets is the Checklist of Editions of Greek and Latin Papyri, Ostraca and Tablets, ed. John F. Oates et al., 4th ed., BASPSup 7 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1992); an online edition is available at <http://library.duke.edu/rubenstein/scriptorium/papyrus/texts/clist.html>. When collections or selections of papyri are given, include the source of the citation. Thus,

4. P.Ryl. 77.32–47 (ed. Hunt and Edgar, 2:154–59).

Select Papyri. Translated by Arthur S. Hunt and Campbell C. Edgar. 5 vols. LCL. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

See §6.4.3.

8.3.17 Ancient Near Eastern Texts

For standard abbreviations of editions of Akkadian and Sumerian cuneiform texts and compositions, see Rykle Borger, Handbuch der Keilschrift Literatur, 3 vols. (Berlin: de Gruyter: 1967–1975), as well as the lists of abbreviations in CAD and AHw (see §§3.4.2, 5.5). For Hittite and Anatolian studies, follow Silvin Košak, Konkordanz der hethitischen Keilschrifttafeln 1 (Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 2005), xliii–lxxii. Researchers may also consult lists of abbreviations available online through the Cuneiform Digital Library Initiative (CDLI) at http://cdli.ox.ac.uk/wiki/doku.php?id=abbreviations_for_assyriology and the Hethitologie Portal Mainz at <http://www.hethport.uni-wuerzburg.de/hetkonk/hetkonkabkrz.html>. For abbreviations of Egyptological sources, follow the Annual Egyptological Bibliography (AEB), published by Brill between 1947 and 2001 and now updated online at <http://oeb.griffith.ox.ac.uk>.

A.2 THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CANON

The traditional number of books in the Roman Catholic canon is forty-nine. English titles in italic appear in the Roman Catholic canon but not in the Protestant canon. The order of books in Roman Catholic Bibles varies. The order below reflects current editions, such as the Jerusalem Bible and the New American Bible. The italic titles in parentheses are those found in the Latin Vulgate. The appendix of the Latin Vulgate contains 3 Esdras, 4 Esdras, and the Prayer of Manasseh.

APPENDIX C: TEXTS FROM THE JUDEAN DESERT

by Emanuel Tov¹

INTRODUCTION

This list revises three earlier versions:²

Emanuel Tov with the collaboration of Stephen J. Pfann, Companion Volume to The Dead Sea Scrolls on Microfiche—A Comprehensive Facsimile Edition of the Texts from the Judean Desert (Leiden: Brill and IDC, 1993).

Emanuel Tov with the collaboration of Stephen J. Pfann, Companion Volume to The Dead Sea Scrolls Microfiche Edition (2nd ed.; Leiden: Brill and IDC, 1995).

Emanuel Tov, “A List of the Texts from the Judean Desert,” in The Dead Sea Scrolls after Fifty Years—A Comprehensive Assessment, ed. Peter W. Flint and James C. VanderKam, 2 vols. (Leiden: Brill, 1999), 2:669–717.

The list contains the following data for all the texts from the Judean Desert:

Column 1. The sequential number in the list of the texts from the individual sites in the Judean Desert.

Column 2. The name of the composition as published in DJD or the most central publication outside that series (e.g., the large texts from Cave 1, as well as some texts from Cave 11, which were not scheduled to be included in DJD). In the nomenclature of DJD, a distinction is made between raised lowercase letters designating different copies of the same composition, such as 4QGen^b and 4QGen^c, and uppercase letters designating independent compositions within a certain literary genre, such as 4QTohorot A and 4QTohorot B. The names also contain references to the material (pap = papyrus), language (ar = Aramaic; gr = Greek; lat = Latin; nab = Nabatean; sem = Semitic), and script (paleo = Paleo-Hebrew; cr = cryptic [A or B]). All other documents are in Hebrew, written on leather.

Column 3. For Qumran texts (section 1): the siglum used in Raymon E. Brown, Joseph A. Fitzmyer, W. G. Oxtoby, and J. Teixidor, A Preliminary Concordance to the Hebrew and Aramaic Fragments from Qumran Caves II–X, Including Especially, the Unpublished Material from Cave IV (Göttingen: privately printed, 1988). For texts from sites other than Qumran (sections 2–13): the plate numbers in the early publication.

Column 4. The inventory number of the fragments in the Rockefeller Museum building (a number without details), the Shrine of the Book, Israel Museum (SHR), Biblio-

1. Emanuel Tov kindly provided the appendix of Texts from the Judean Desert. The Society is grateful to Professor Tov for allowing its publication. Citations of works that were listed as “in press” in the first edition of this handbook have been updated to provide the actual facts of publication. This edition has also revised the citations in column 6 to follow a modified author-date format that requires less space than the style used in the first edition, which allows for a larger font size throughout the appendix.

2. In the compilation and editing of this list over the years, I have been ably assisted first by Claire Pfann and then by Janice Karnis.

thèque nationale de Paris (BNP), Department of Antiquities of Jordan (DAJ), and others. An asterisked number (e.g., 216*) refers to a parallel series of numbers assigned to the documents from Naḥal Ḥever and Masada that were transferred from the Shrine of the Book to the Rockefeller Museum building in 1996.

Column 5. Previous sigla, such as C53 (C = Cross; M = Milik; Sl = Strugnell; Sn = Skehan; Sy = Starcky; Ul = Ulrich).

Column 6. Short bibliographical references identifying the names of the editors and publication year together with the plate number(s). Full references are provided in the Editors and Editions Cited section below.

The items in the List of Texts from the Judean Desert are grouped according to the sites at which they were found: first Qumran, and thereafter all other sites arranged from north to south:

No.	Site	No.	Site
1	Qumran	8	Wadi Sdeir
2	Wadi Daliyeh	9	Naḥal Ḥever
3	Ketef Jericho	10	Naḥal Ḥever/Seiyal
4	Khirbet Mird	11	Naḥal Mishmar
5	Wadi Nar	12	Naḥal Ṣe'elim
6	Wadi Ghweir	13	Masada
7	Wadi Murabba'at

APPENDIX D: SHEPHERD OF HERMAS

As noted at §8.3.11, citing the Shepherd of Hermas is complicated by the fact that two numbering systems are sometimes used: an older, tripartite system that numbers the mandates, similitudes, and visions, then divides each into the anticipated chapter and verse (this system would suggest a reference with periods, e.g., Herm. Vis. 4.1.4); and a more recent system introduced by Molly Whittaker (Der Hirt des Hermas, GCS 48, Apostolischen Väter 1 [Berlin: Akademie, 1967]) that disregards the three divisions of the Shepherd and renumbers the whole into 114 chapters (allowing the above reference to become Herm. 22.4 [or 22:4]). For the Shepherd, we recommend composite references such as Herm. Vis. 4.1.4 (22.4). The chart below can be used to create or check the accuracy of such composite references.
